TRANS-TASMAN RIVALRY IN DUBAI CRICKET FEST

26 Maoists gunned down in Gadchiroli encounter

The toll could go up, say police; three security personnel also injured

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mumbai

IN a major anti-Maoist operation, at least 26 suspected rebels, including women and activists, were gunned down in the Mardintola jungle of Maharashtra's Gadchiroli district on Saturday. The police operation was carried out at a dense forest area about 250 kilometres from Nagpur bordering Chhattisgarh.

According to preliminary reports, the encounter happened when jawans of the C-60 force, an elite anti-Maoist squad of the Maharashtra police, were patrolling the area. The Left-wing extremists who were hiding in the jungle reportedly fired on the jawans, who retaliated immediately.

While some reports said senior Maoist leader Milind Teltumbde — the younger brother of Anand Teltumbde, who is under arrest in connection with the Bhima-Koregaon case — was also killed, police have not officially declared it yet. The identity of those killed would be known by Sunday morning, police sources said.

Three security personnel were injured in the gunfight and they were airlifted to Nagpur for medical treatment, they added.

Gadchiroli superintendent of police Ankit Goyal said additional forces were rushed to the spot after the incident.

The Gadchiroli police control room said the encounter, which started early in the morning, was still going on between the police and the Maoists. The toll could increase as search operations were under way in the area. A massive combing operation is underway to detect more bodies, sources said.

Police officials said they have recovered huge arms and ammunition from the operation site. Maharashtra Home Minister Dilip Walse Patil lauded the Gadchiroli police for the successful operation.

With 26 Maoist casualties, Saturday's encounter is the second biggest in Gadchiroli's history. On April 23, 2018, the Gadchiroli police had gunned down 40 Maoists in two different skirmishes.

While 34 were killed in the Boria-Kasnasur area of Etapalli tehsil, six from the same group were gunned down while they were reportedly on the run in Aheri tehsil.

MILIND TELTUMBDE AMONG THE DEAD?

As news of the Gadchiroli encounter broke, there were rumours about CPI (Maoist) central committee member Milind Teltumbde being among those killed. However, the police have not confirmed the identity of any of the slain rebels, saying the bodies would be identified on Sunday

This was a very big operation where 26 Maoist were killed. This operation will be noted in the history of India

Colonel, kin among 7 killed in Manipur terrorist ambush on Assam Rifles convoy

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

IN one of the deadliest insurgent attacks on security forces in Manipur in recent times, Col Viplav Tripathi, commanding officer of 46 Assam Rifles, his wife, son and four jawans died in an ambush on Saturday at Thinghat in Churachandpur district close to the Myanmar border.

The People's Liberation Army and Manipur Naga People's Front have claimed responsibility for the attack. State DGP L M Khaute told TNIE that reports suggest the attack began with IED blasts and then gunfire followed, including lethode (shell firing).

A defence source said the militants used an under-barrel grenade launcher to hit Tripathi's car. The militants were fully aware the colonel's family was travelling in the car, the source added.

The attack occurred around 11 am when the victims were returning from a forward camp in the Singhat sub-division of the district. The four jawans who died are Suman Swargiary, Khatnei Konyak, RP Meena and Shyamal Das.

This is the deadliest attack on security personnel in the state since the June 5, 2015, killings of 18 Army personnel in Chandel by Naga militants NSCN-K.

PM holds talks on risks of crypto, ban unlikely

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THOUGH the government is concerned about the possibility of the unregulated cryptocurrency market being used for money laundering and terror financing, it is unlikely that it might take any steps to ban it.

In a high-level meeting chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi to discuss issues related to cryptocurrency on Saturday, it was decided that any steps taken would be 'progressive and forward looking'.

Government sources said it was acknowledged that cryptocurrency is evolving and the government would keep a close watch and be proactive.

However, those attending the meeting expressed concern over attempts being made to "mislead" the youth with big promises and aggressive advertising, and that these advertisements should be stopped.

The finance minister is meeting stakeholders on Monday.

Over 250 taken ill in Shivamogga

ENS @ Shivamogga

OVER 250 people were hospitalised on Friday evening after eating food at wedding and naming ceremonies in two different places in Shivamogga district. All of them are out of danger.

District Health Officer Dr Rajesh Suragihalli said that over 3,000 people attended a wedding at Aladahalli. "Over 200 people complained of vomiting, dysentery and stomach pain. Many of them were shifted to local health centres, while some to McGann Hospital. All of them are doing well," he added.

He said they suspect contaminated water used for cooking and served as drinking water to be the reason for people falling ill.

At Kargal in Sagar taluk, 12 people were hospitalised after eating food at a dhaba. They too complained of similar symptoms.

TOWARDS A CLEANER EARTH

Yoga therapist catches kids young and teaches them asanas, eco-awareness and 'Waste to Wealth' techniques

RAGHOTTAM KOPPAR @Gadag:

A wealth of knowledge and life skills await children who attend the Anmol Yoga and Ayurvedic Treatment Centre in Mundargi. Besides training in yoga, they undergo an enriching experience of holistic development — they learn to value themselves with sessions on personality and skill development, value waste which they upcycle with fresh ideas, and much more.

Founder Mangala Chandrakanth Itagi, who holds a Ph.D in yoga and is a therapist, started the centre seven years ago. Yoga is taught from Monday to Friday, while Saturday and Sunday mornings are reserved for the overall development of children, aged 6 to 15.

It was the profusion of plastic – plastic bottles and other stuff thrown at street corners, plastic rakhis hanging in shops, and other plastic ware -- that made Mangala realise she should do something about it. Deeply interested in environmental awareness, Mangala began a programme 'Waste to Wealth' to teach children to turn dry waste into useful products. They are trained to make greeting cards, planters, photo frames, pen stands, hand fans, badges, eco-friendly rakhis, face masks, mats, collages and paintings, and hanging planters and water containers for birds. Dreary plastic turned into bright and beautiful decor.

Besides inculcating in children the habit of recycling, she started an awareness camp on banning plastic, as a two-pronged attack on the menace.

The idea of training is like a chain, says Mangala, who teaches 45 students. She wants these children to take the teaching to their friends and keep the chain going. The 'Waste to Wealth' training, which has been going on for three years, teaches students the techniques of reinventing water bottles, oil cans, ice-cream boxes, invitation cards and other similar domestic waste. Mangala says these converted items give the same satisfaction as new items.

With the kids learning something new, parents are also happy to learn waste management techniques. The young ones have also taught their parents to separate dry and wet waste, and use the latter to fashion creative things.

A few months ago, the yoga centre organised an eco-friendly rakhi training camp. It was a huge success with students making hundreds of eco-friendly rakhis and training other students too. The concept here is one of growth: each rakhi has an ayurvedic plant seed embedded in the threads, like tulsi, ashwagandha, asparagus etc. After the festival, each child has to place the medicinal seed in a planter and watch it take root. This idea helped hundreds of children move away from plastic rakhis and and also grow a plant each.

Having seen children easily getting addicted to mobiles and ignoring creative activities, Mangala also encourages them to learn gardening, go trekking and play traditional games. Hence, there is 'Karma Yoga' during the mornings on weekends. Children are given physical tasks like trekking to Kappatagudda, or cleaning an area or organising a play.

Eight-year-old Reetu Magaji, who has been with the centre for three years, said, "We wait eagerly for every weekend because we have fun in the yoga centre. Nowadays, I don't throw anything at home – from ice-cream sticks, plastic bottles, bags, dry leaves, paint cans to coconuts, everything can be used to make wonderful things. The trainers taught us how to use even kitchen waste and garden waste. We are also teaching our friends. During the last rakhi festival, we planted 32 trees, and we water them daily."

Said Mangala, "I started the yoga centre but also got the idea of teaching innovative techniques in waste management. If such initiatives are spread across the state and country, we can save the earth from the plastic menace. I started with a small step and hope that these children teach others."

Fit for upcycling
Waste greeting cards, used oil cans, water bottles, plastic containers, plastic pots, drums, dust bins, brushes, bamboo boxes, calendars, old sarees, old dresses

Festival awareness
The yoga centre celebrates every festival, irrespective of caste and creed. At festival sessions, teachers talk about the history and importance of the festival and teach how to celebrate it without harming the environment.

Organic manure
Mangala also teaches how to make organic manure from kitchen and garden waste. She says the use of organic manure is helpful in saving the environment and avoid harmful chemical fertilisers.

Shivamogga's Karnataka Sangha has been successfully promoting the language for the last 91 years

MARX TEJASWI @ Shivamogga

THE language reflects one's culture. Its growth and usage are indicators of the health of a civilisation. Keeping this as a motto, the Karnataka Sangha in Shivamogga has been an active and enthusiastic promoter of Kannada for the last 91 years.

The Sangha, situated in a building named after renowned areca merchant Hasoodi Venkatashastri, is one of the prominent destinations for literature enthusiasts from across the state, especially those from undivided Shivamogga district and Malnad regions. Inaugurated by Rahstra Kavi and Jnanpith awardee Kuvempu on November 8, 1930, the Sangha is engaged in literary activities throughout the year, conducting interactions and lectures, publishing books, organising exhibitions and cultural programmes, and conferring awards.

In the 1930s, as Kannada literature and developments across the world had peaked the interest of youth from the Malnad region, literary icon Masti Venkatesha Iyengar used to often get poet DaRa Bendre to Shivamogga to interact with these literature enthusiasts. During one such interaction, the idea for Karnataka Sangha in Shivamogga was pitched.

"Coming forward, literature enthusiasts and young lawyers Anand, SV Krishnamurthy Rao, Gururao Deshpande, Bhoopalam Chandrashekharayya, Bhoopalam Puttananjappa and Devangi Manappa set it up. After Kuvempu inaugurated it, the Sangha was registered in 1936," said Manjunath, a former president of Sangha.

It stands tall among the hoary and reputed literary organisations in the state, like the Karnataka Vidyavardhaka Sangha of Dharwad, set up in 1890, and Kannada Sahitya Parishat, Bengaluru, established in 1915. Despite conducting programmes throughout the year and conferring cash awards to achievers and students, the Sangha does not accept any grants from the government. The organisation generates its own income through rentals from a commercial complex.

"We confer honorary memberships to prominent litterateurs hailing from undivided Shivamogga district. The only criterion is that they should have achieved something significant in Kannada literature at the state or national level. The first recipient of honorary membership was Kuvempu," Sangh president HD Udayashankara Shastri said.

Such memberships have also been given to 13 prominent Kannada personalities, including MK Indira, P Lankesh, GS Shivarudrappa, HaMa Nayak, UR Ananthamurthy, KV Subbanna, Shivamogga Subbanna, Na D'Souza and NS Lakshminarayana Bhat.

One of the major activities in the Sangh calendar is conferring of literary awards each year in the name of honorary members with a cash prize of Rs 10,000. Kuvempu award is presented for best novel, UR Ananthamurthy award for best short story, KV Subbanna award for best drama, P Lankesh award for Muslim writers and Hasoodi Venkatashastri award for best science literature. The lifetime achievement award, which carries a cash reward of Rs 25,000, is also conferred.

The Sangha encourages Kannada literature students of Kuvempu University through awards and gold medals. Awards are also given in the name of Shambha Joshi, Shivaram Karanth, Bendre and Tee Nam Srikantaiah. Its 'Tingala Athithi' programme, where a writer is invited every month for an interaction, is popular among the local population.

"The Sangha has so far published 30 books, including that of Kuvempu, Kukke Subramanya Shastri, JP Rajarathnam, DaRa Bendre, AN Murthy Rao, TP Kailasam, Goruru Ramaswamy Iyengar and other prominent writers. Kuvempu's works which were published from Karnataka Sangha are Sahitya Prachara, Raktakshi and Navilu Part 1 and 2. Bendre's Naadalile was also published by Sangha. Several books, including that of Girish Karnad, Shanthinath Desai, Sudha Murthy, Vasumathi Udupa, T P Ashoka and others, were released at the sangha," said Treasurer HD Mohan Shastri.

Secretary Ashalatha said the Sangha has been awarded the Dr Da Ra Bendre Rashtreeya Trust Award, Suvarna Karnataka Rajyotsava Award and other honours for its contribution to Kannada language. "The Sangha successfully organised Akhila Karnataka Kannada Sahitya Sammelan, presided by Bendre, in 1942 and Akhila Bharata Kannada Sahitya Sammelana in 1976," she added.

A VISIONARY

When the Karnataka Sangha had no permanent place, the then City Municipal Council sanctioned a site. Hasoodi Venkatashastri, an areca merchant, donated Rs 30,000 to construct a building. Litterateur BM Srikantaiah laid the foundation stone for the building in 1942. Erstwhile Mysore king Jayachamaraja Wadiyar inaugurated the building on December 11, 1943. After the demise of Venkatashastri, the building was named after him on Bendre's suggestion. Later, the office-bearers constructed a commercial complex.

BMTC to get 643 new buses in six months

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

IN another six months, the city will get 643 new Bangalore Metropolitan Transport Corporation (BMTC) buses, consisting of Bharat Stage-6 diesel and electric vehicles, some of which will also act as feeder buses for Namma Metro.

On Saturday, BMTC Managing Director Anbu Kumar V inspected the first prototype of a BS-6 bus and said it met the requirements. "We will get 565 BS-6 buses. The first prototype was inspected and after the final technical approval, the buses will be delivered in three months," he added.

BMTC will also get 90 electric buses from JBM and 300 more electric buses from Ashok Leyland in six months. Most of them will be feeder services for Metro. As the news of a survey of prototypes spread, Bengalureans took to social media expressing their pleasure over the induction of new buses. They wanted more electric buses instead of BS-6 as it will help expand and add more charging stations.

BMTC is working on scrapping old buses in a phased manner so that there is no shortage of vehicles. In the first stage, 100 buses will be scrapped. Government order specifies that scrapped buses be auctioned and companies procure parts that can be utilised in new buses.

BMTC now has 6,484 buses, of which 5,141 are operational on a daily basis.

Army officer with type-1 diabetes finds winning ways

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

IT takes a fauji's spirit to fight the gravest odds and live life to the hilt. Major Kumar Gaurav, currently posted at MEG Centre, Bengaluru, has Type-1 diabetes, but it doesn't show on him. He was diagnosed with the debilitating disease in 2011. He took it as a challenge and decided to regain control of his life and body.

Fitness is at the core of an Army officer's persona and Major Gaurav is no exception, despite his health condition. He is a stickler to a tough daily regimen, which includes maintaining a fine balance between fitness and health requirements. "The use of Continuous Glucose Monitor (CGM) has been a game-changer and gives me very accurate insight about glucose fluctuation in my body," said the officer, who trains extensively and has participated in marathons and other athletic events. He now intends to participate in the Ironman triathlon in June/July 2022 at Hamburg/Frankfurt. "Ironman is considered to be the toughest one-day sporting event in the world comprising 3.8 km open water swimming, 180 km of cycling and 42.2 km run to be completed in 17 hours," said Maj Gaurav.

Major Kumar Gaurav gets ready for a long bike ride | EXPRESS

On his daughter's first birthday on September 8, 2016, he had registered for his first half marathon, which was scheduled three days later. "I remember I ran my heart out and finished fourth among 50-60 odd runners. Thereafter, every time I went on leave I made it a point to run one or two half marathons and finished in the top 10 in four of them. This was the beginning of my journey," said the Army officer.

The posting at the MEG Centre, Bengaluru, has been a boon for the officer due to the excellent facilities available. At present, he is training for Herculean 70.3, Odisha and Bengaluru Marathon, both scheduled in January 2022. "I keep myself continuously hydrated and focus on consuming home-made items to keep my glucose level in range. I train with a few local friends and tri-coach Arjun Kundikuppa. My aim is to educate, empower and inspire people living with Type-1 diabetes and make each one of us believe how strong we actually are. We cannot let diabetes hold us back. My pancreas have given up, but I never will," said the officer.

"Life with Type-1 diabetes is difficult and requires lot of discipline in terms of food intake and medication. To all the aspiring athletes, I would request to not jump into the event directly, understand your body, especially how it responds to food intake and spike in glucose level. Once you are fully confident about it, then slowly graduate in term of time and distance," said the officer.

He added that it is a myth that Type-1 diabetes can happen only due to poor life style. "It is an auto-immune disorder which can happen to any individual," he said. He can be contacted at kugo_type1@gmail.com

NAL MAKES CITY'S FIRST COVID VACCINE DELIVERY BY DRONE

It can carry payload of 15kg, fly at altitude of 500m at a speed of 36 kmph

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

AT 9.53 am on Saturday, the staff at Haragadde Public Health Centre in Anekal on Bengaluru's outskirts were surprised to see a multi-copter unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) land at their premises with 50 vials of Covid-19 vaccines and syringes in a special container. It arrived from Chandapura PHC near Electronics City, covering a distance of 7 km in just 10 minutes, which would have taken 40 minutes by road.

After delivery of vaccines, the drone returned to the Chandapura PHC, completing the first successful demonstration of aerial delivery of vaccines using a drone in Bengaluru. This sets the stage for similar beyond visual line of sight autopilot flights for delivery of medicines, food, postal packets and even human organs.

The National Aerospace Laboratories (NAL) developed the indigenous medium-class BVLOS multi-copter UAV, made of light weight carbon fibre foldable structure for ease of transportation. It can carry a payload of 15 kg with hovering endurance of 40 minutes, and can fly at an altitude of 500 metres at a speed of 36 kmph.

Access to diabetes care: If not now, then when?

DR VIRAJ SUVARNA

IS there a real issue about access to diabetes care? Sir Francis Peabody, renowned physician, says that the secret in the caring of the patient is in caring for the patient. In other words, despite a plethora of options, Indian patients with diabetes still do not have access to comprehensive diabetes care. The answer could lie in the word 'care'. What does care mean? Continuous Appropriate (time in) Range without Excursions. Even 100 years after the discovery of insulin, millions of people with diabetes around the world still cannot access the care they need.

The theme for World Diabetes Day 2021-23 is 'Access to diabetes care -- If not now, when?". India may not be the diabetes capital of the world, but we are getting there. The numbers say it all. In December 2019, India had more than 77 million patients with diabetes, according to IDF. And this number is projected to reach more than 100 million in 2030 and more than 134 million in 2045.

Among children (0-14 years), in 1000s, it was estimated to be 95.6 (including adolescents of 0-19 years, it was estimated to be 171.3). Can we reverse this trend and become the diabetes care capital of the world? One of the measures to control this is perhaps encouraging people to eat right. We seem to be a 'carbivorous' nation. Our intake of carbohydrates (65%) far exceeds what a balanced diet recommends (~55%).

WORLD DIABETES DAY

We need to eat more protein (at least 15-20%), more fibre, and our intake of fat needs to be balanced between saturated, mono-unsaturated and polyunsaturated fat. And we need to 'insulinize' ourselves early, rather than later. As it is, many patients with diabetes get diagnosed when up to 50% of beta cell (in the Islets of Langerhans in the pancreas) function is lost. Why wait when it is already late? When we are diagnosed to have diabetes, our HbA1c is already close to 9%.

In such cases, the beta cells are stunned amid the glucotoxicity and lipotoxicity. This can be quickly reversed if one were to give the patient insulin early before the beta cells become permanently dysfunctional. After all, when a person is diagnosed to have diabetes, his/her own insulin is either not being secreted in appropriate quantities or there is resistance to its action. Is diabetes an insulin replacement disorder? There is an erroneous mindset that insulin is only for those who have uncontrolled diabetes, despite oral anti-diabetic drugs. Many are still scared of the prick although the insulin injections are now almost painless. If oral insulin becomes a reality, it will be prick-less and more physiological, as it will first enter the portal circulation, go to the liver, and then to the systemic circulation.

Be that as it may, one needs to provide holistic care for the person with diabetes as diabetes too is a systemic disorder. On a world map of diabetes, India and China look bloated. It is time to switch India to getting back into shape. Else, Indians will be sitting ducks for cardiovascular disease. We need to move as it helps in maintaining the excess weight loss due to dietary modifications. Let's (inter)change before we have to. Change is constant (besides death and taxes), but in diabetes, it is not the constant hyperglycemia that damages, as much as the rapid post-prandial glycemic excursions. It is not the fat that we can see, but it is the fat that we cannot see, the Visceral Adipose Tissue (VAT), that we need to reduce.

The Congress on Saturday accused the BJP-led NDA government at the Centre of g to 'Operation cover-up' in the Rafale fighter jet deal. Speaking to the media at the KPCC office in Bengaluru, AICC spokesperson Pawan Khera said, "The latest revelations in 'Operation cover-up' is that of the dubious nexus between the Modi government, the Central Bureau of Investigation and the Enforcement Directorate to bury the corruption in the Rafale deal."

B'LURU TOP COP BREAKS HIS SILENCE ON HACKER SRIKI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE city police have broken their silence on the hacker Srikrishna alias Sriki and the alleged Bitcoin (BTC) scam. "Since distorted reports are appearing in media about the Bitcoin case, it is stated that investigation conducted by CCB has been done in a fair and professional manner," stated City Police Commissioner Kamal Pant in a release on Saturday.

"On November 4, 2020, based on credible information, regarding a drug consignment procured through darknet, CCB Police secured one accused and seized 500 grams of hydro ganja. A case was registered at KG Nagar police station. Ten other accused, including Srikrishna alias Sriki, were arrested," he said.

Srikrishna confessed to his involvement in alleged hacking of cryptocurrency websites. A complaint was registered in Cottonpet police station.

"Neither any Bitcoins were transferred from the account of Srikrishna, nor any Bitcoin was lost. A government order dated December 8, 2020 to open a Bitcoin account was obtained. Srikrishna showed a BTC wallet, which contained 31.8 BTCs. The wallet password was changed in the presence of cyber experts, government panchas and the entire procedure was submitted to the court. Subsequently, Court permission was obtained to use the password to transfer the Bitcoins to a police wallet account. Upon reaching the wallet shown by Srikrishna, it showed 186.811 Bitcoins. Cyber experts opined that the account claimed by the accused as his personal account was in fact a live wallet of an exchange and the accused did not have a private key for this," said Pant.

The claim made on Whale Alert that 14,682 stolen Bitfinex Bitcoins were transferred was "completely unsubstantiated. The law enforcement system/ investigating agencies cannot act on unknown social media handles," he said.

On the allegation that the police drugged Srikrishna, Pant said on January 11, Sriki had submitted before the court that the police had not forced him to consume drugs. "The Court questioned him if he had consumed Alprazolam and the accused said he had the drug during police custody. Blood and urine samples were collected and sent to FSL... It gave a report stating that no presence of drugs was found," said Pant.

PM shielding Bommai, says Surjewala

ENS @ Bengaluru

AICC General Secretary and Karnataka in-charge Randeep Singh Surjewala and spokesperson Dr Gourav Vallabh on Saturday alleged that the Bitcoin scam surfaced when Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai was the home minister and that Prime Minister Narendra Modi is shielding Bommai.

"It is the country's biggest-ever coverup by the government, as Modi instead of taking it seriously has asked Bommai not to worry. The silence of the PM and Union Home Minister Amit Shah on the entire issue is shocking, though Bommai met them on November 11, 2021", they alleged in New Delhi.They said the accused, Srikrishna made a statement before the Metropolitan Magistrate, Bengaluru in December 2020 admitting to hacking.

"Whale Alert - a twitter account which tracks large-scale cryptocurrency transactions - reflects that on December 1, 2020, and April 14, 2021, Bitcoins from the 2016 hack of Bitfinex Bitcoin exchange were transferred. The value is $704.8 million (approx Rs 5,240 crore)," they said.

There is no scam: BJP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

EVEN as the Opposition Congress continues its tirade against the State Government over the Bitcoin scam, the BJP and the government on Saturday hit back, terming the allegations as baseless. "There has been absolutely no scam. However, new actors have emerged, making a mountain out of a mole and hurling baseless allegations based on distorted facts," BJP Karnataka spokesperson Capt Ganesh Karnik said.

He accused the Congress of carrying out a slanderous campaign.

Health Minister Dr K Sudhakar too rubbished the Congress allegations and said they are based on the statements of the accused who is a hacker and a habitual offender. "We are trying to expose it. We have nothing to hide and we have shared all information with Interpol and the CBI," he said.

Higher Education Minister Dr C N Ashwath Narayan said there's no question of changing the CM. "There's no wrong committed by the government. The inquiry is taking place in a transparent manner by central and state agencies. If the opposition has any proof, they can furnish it. They should not shoot in the dark or talk for the sake of talking."

Issuing a point by point rebuttal, Karnik clarified that "neither any Bitcoins were transferred from the account of alleged hacker Srikrishna nor were any lost." He said that till date, no foreign law enforcement agencies or foreign companies have approached the Bengaluru police about any hacking, as claimed by the accused. Even representatives of Bitfinex company have not shared any details of the alleged hack or sought any information, he added.

Responding to the Congress allegations on the role and responsibilities of Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, who was the Home Minister during that time, Karnik said, "At no stage, the Home Minister or any other politician was connected with the investigation. Proceedings of the investigations were meticulously recorded and submitted to court in realtime basis, ensuring fairness of investigation," he stated.

ROW OVER BITCOIN CASE RAGES

'Not hiding anything or protecting anyone'

RAMU PATIL @ Bengaluru

AS the political slugfest over the Bitcoin hacking case continues, Karnataka Home Minister Araga Jnanendra said they are not trying to hide anything and the government is open to any probe. The minister said there is nothing in the case as the accused hacker was bluffing and misled everyone. Excerpts from an interview:

Your views on the case and allegations against the government?

I have looked into a lot of information related to the case and I think there is nothing in it. When the accused Srikrishna was arrested in a drugs case, it was found that he was a hacker. He gave statements claiming he had hacked many websites, even an international bank. The police believed this. In their enthusiasm, they also stated that he had shown 31 Bitcoins and wanted to transfer them to the police wallet for the probe. Since it was a technical case, we took the assistance of experts from the Indian Institute of Science (IISc). However, when they went to transfer it, they found 186 Bitcoins in the wallet that belonged to an exchange, and not the accused. Everything is recorded. Experts who were assisting the police told us that he (Srikrishna) cannot be trusted and he is a 'bogus' person. He bluffed to the police and misled everyone. He keeps changing his statements. The 2018 pub brawl case (UB City case) was also related to Bitcoins. His name was on the chargesheet in that case, but he was not questioned at that time.

When was it referred to ED and CBI Interpol Wing?

After the cases were registered, the Enforcement Directorate (ED) wrote to the state on March 15 this year and our police commissioner wrote back to them on April 3 with all details about Srikrishna's arrest, his statements claiming hacking at the international level and all the case details so that they can also take up the probe. We also wrote to the CBI Interpol Wing on April 28 about his claims of hacking at the international level and asked them to take note of it. We are not trying to hide anything. We are following all procedures and doing everything transparently so that inquiries can be conducted by all agencies. We exposed Srikrishna. We had also sought the assistance of experts from the IISc, Bengaluru, by writing to them on November 30, 2020 so that they can assist the police in the probe.

If there is nothing in the case, why did the CM take it up with the PM during his recent meeting?

Since it was discussed in the media, he (the CM) referred to it during his meeting with the PM. We have to tell him (PM) about the attempts to tarnish the government's image. The PM asked the CM not to bother about the controversy and to continue working for the state's development.

There are allegations about several lapses in the probe and the accused was allegedly administered mind-altering drugs when he was in police custody?

After such allegations were made, the court had ordered a medical test and the report was negative. The Congress is demanding for a probe monitored by Supreme Court judge to bring out the truth in the case. Our government is open to any probe. I am surprised why it has become such a big issue when there is nothing in it. Maybe because of political reasons. The Congress, which was in power in 2018, failed to take action when a case was registered against Srikrishna at that time. All details came out when he was arrested in a drugs case in 2020. In both cases, sons of Congress leaders were involved.

The Congress, which was in power in 2018, failed to take action when a case was registered against Srikrishna at that time. All details came out when he was arrested in a drugs case in 2020

– Araga Jnanendra, Home Minister

If the sons of Congress leaders are involved, why has no action been taken?

They should have taken action in the case that was registered when the party was in power. We have been conducting a detailed probe and seven to eight cases were registered and the accused is in custody. In his statement, he had mentioned that he was into hacking since 2015-16.

Is there any plan to rope in experts to strengthen the system?

Yes, we have realised the need to take the assistance of experts. We are thinking about it and we will discuss it with CM.

'Probe is to cover tracks, not to unravel the truth'

RAMU PATIL @ Bengaluru

CONGRESS leader and former IT Minister Priyank Kharge said the probe into the Bitcoin case is aimed at covering the tracks and not unravelling anything. He dared the government to release documents to back the claim of handing over the probe to the Enforcement Directorate. Excerpts.

What is the case and how is it a scam?

We have barely scratched the surface. A hacker surrenders before the police, but it was not told to the people. Only after the habeas corpus petition was filed did we get to know that he was arrested. He was continuously kept in custody by slapping many cases. We are suspecting foul play as the accused claimed that he had hacked government websites, e-procurement portals for gains. In his voluntary statements, he declares that he has illegally gained profit by hacking gaming websites and also hacked into three currency exchanges. During his police custody, we suspect that he was used for other means to make money for officials and people in power. Why did the government not immediately inform the ED and Interpol when there is a clear order in that regard. They informed central agencies after keeping him in custody for three months, after he got bail and after the central agencies ask for information. All these lead to suspicion.

They informed central agencies after keeping him (Sriki) in custody for 3 months, after he got bail and after agencies ask for details. These things lead to suspicion

– Priyank Kharge, Congress leader

Everything seems to be based on the accused's statements. The Home Minister says Srikrishna is bluffing.

What we are saying is not just based on the accused's statements, but also official documents and panchanama reports. In those reports, it was stated that there were 31.8 Bitcoins and they had changed the password for safekeeping. When they tried to put them into a police wallet, they found 186 Bitcoins in it and the transaction to transfer them to the police wallet failed. It is all there in official documents. Let them come before the media and explain the three pachanama reports. Let them tell why his blood samples were not tested on January 12 when his father filed a petition saying his son was drugged. Why the delay in writing to the ED? Also, if it was a non-issue, why did the Chief Minister discuss it with the Prime Minister?

You said if an impartial probe is done in the case, Karnataka will see a third BJP CM. What is the basis for such a statement?

We suspect that the accused was manipulated during his custody for the benefit of those in power. When the country's first cryptocurrency scam was happening, won't the Home Minister (Basavaraj Bommai was Home Minister at that time) be aware of it and won't there be daily briefings about it? Won't there be intelligence reports about it? The accused claimed he had hacked 1.2 lakh Bitcoins. More importantly, when the government e-procurement website was hacked and bids were being altered, that was good enough for the Home Minister to take note. I want to know, was the Home Minister aware of it or not? If he was not aware, he should say so. If he was aware, why he did not act? The government and the BJP need to answer. If Congress leaders are involved, we are challenging them to release their names.

In 2018, Srikrishna was booked in a case along with a Congress leader's son...

How do we know what he had done in 2018? Let us assume that officers at that time were inefficient. Are you trying to say that you will continue that inefficiency. Is that the answer the government should give? They are neck-deep in this, knowingly or unknowingly, their kith and kin are involved. This investigation is to cover their tracks and it is not to unravel anything.

The CM and Home Minister are saying these are all politically motivated allegations...

I am surprised that in this country, all of a sudden, the Opposition is responsible for everything, including governance. They say they have handed the probe to central agencies. They can shut our mouths today if they release documents to show that they have given the case to central agencies. What prevents them from releasing those documents?

Our aim is to free India from Cong ideology, says Santhosh

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mangaluru

THE BJP's national general secretary (organisation) B L Santhosh on Saturday said there is a need to strengthen the party at the booth-level to win constituencies where it faced defeat in recent elections.

"We could not win in some constituencies, like Ullal in coastal Karnataka. Even in Bhadravati, we lost. Hence, to win such segments, we should strengthen the party at the booth-level," he told party workers while addressing the valedictory of a state-level workshop organised for 24 cells of the BJP here. He said BJP should get political hold in winning such constituencies.

Hitting out at the Congress, he said the slogan 'Congress-mukth Bharat' means not eradicating the party itself, but making the country free of its ideology. "There should be an opposition... an effective one in a democracy," he said. He also called Congress leader Rahul Gandhi a part-time politician who lacks experience in politics. "The Congress leaders are of the opinion that they can get to the front page (of newspapers) if they hit out at PM," he added.

Senior BJP leader B L Santhosh addresses a BJP workshop in Mangaluru on Saturday

"Congress uses Gandhi's name for cheap politics and criticises the RSS when elections are approaching," he said. On murmurs of BJP leader Jagadish Shettar's meeting top party leaders in Delhi, Santhosh said, "If that is the case, I would have received information. He might have gone to Delhi for some personal work."

All for polls, 7 BJP MLCs now K'buragi 'residents'

RAMKRISHNA BADSESHI @ Kalaburagi

THE political manouvering for bagging the Kalaburagi Mahanagara Palike mayor's post has begun with seven BJP MLCs, who have no connection with Kalaburagi reporedly applying for ordinary citizen status in Kalaburagi city. This will give them the right to vote in the mayorall polls slated to be held on November 20.

According to sources, MLCs Laxman Savadi, Sayabanna Talawar, Bharati Shetty, Lehar Singh, Pratap Singh, Raghunath Malkapure and Muniraju have, on November 3, applied to the Kalaburagi Mahanagara Palike for ordinary citizen status and to the voter enrolment officer of Kalaburagi.

While Laxman Savadi has reportedly claimed that he is residing in a part of one Srinivas Desai's house in Biddapur Colony, Saibanna Talawar has shown his house owner to be Raju Devadurga of Biddapur Colony. Bharati Shetty has claimed that she is a tenant in the house of Shantgowda of Biddapur Colony while Lehar Singh has stated that he is living in a rented house belonging to Mahesh Reddy in Aiwan-e-Shahi locality. Pratap Singh too has stated that he is residing in a house in Aiwan-E-Shahi while Raghunath Malkapure and Muniraju have claimed that they were residing in a rented house belonging to advocate Vidyarani Bhat.

Some officials told The New Sunday Express on the condition of anonymity that pressure is being mounted on them by some senior political leaders to accord ordinary citizen status to these MLCs, but claimed to have told the leaders that they would abide by the existing rules and regulations.

Elections to the Kalaburagi Mahanagara Palike were held on September 3 and the results announced on September 6. Of the 55 seats, Congress won in 27, BJP captured 23 seats and later, an independent joined the BJP, taking the strength to 24. The JDS secured four seats.

On October 12, the Palike announced the list of eligible voters for the mayoral polls. This included six BJP MLAs, MLCs and MP, two Congress leaders (Rajya Sabha member Mallikarjun Kharge and MLA Kaneez Fatima) and 4 Janata Dal members. A party will require 32 votes to clinch the mayoral poll. It is said that the BJP was not sure of getting the two additional votes in its favour and hence, planned to include seven MLCs in the voters' list

Former minister Dr Sharanaprakash Patil questioned what Lehar Singh, Bharati Shetty, Muniraju and the others had to do with Kalaburagi. "Let them declare how many times they have visited Kalaburagi," he said. The CM as well as district in-charge minister Murugesh Nirani were bringing pressure on the officials, he alleged. "The Assistant Commissioner should personally visit the addresses mentioned in the applications and verify since how many months they were living there," Dr Patil demanded.

Expressed my desire to be CM to Rahul: Parameshwara

ENS @ Tumakuru

AT a time when the Bitcoin scam is creating ripples in state politics, Congress leader and former Deputy CM Dr G Parameshwara on Saturday brought the Dalit CM issue to the fore by recalling his recent meeting with party leader Rahul Gandhi when he had expressed his desire to the Wayanad MP to become the CM.

"When I was asked, I reacted immediately saying that I too wanted to become CM. I am not in politics just to become MLA or minister. I may become CM or may not. But my statements in the past also triggered a debate over the Dalit CM issue, regardless of people liking it or not. But as a community, we should unite and struggle," he said at the Onake Obavva Jayanti celebrations.

Another fake stamp paper racket busted

Five men arrested; Identities of accused cannot be revealed, as more arrests likely, say police

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE East Division police on Saturday busted another fake stamp paper scam and arrested five men after conducting raids on houses in HAL police limits. The police had gathered information about the scam after some local residents had approached them about land agreements being executed on fake stamp papers.

A senior police officer said a special investigation team (SIT) was formed after Ulsoor and HAL police also found some of the civil documents being fake and started the investigation.

Over the last one month, the SIT gathered more documents and based on clues, two police teams conducted the raids and recovered fake stamp papers, duplicate seals and pen drives.

The officer said, "It is too early to reveal identities of the arrested persons as we believe that some more accused are involved in the scam and efforts are on to nab them in a couple of days."

A year ago, the city police had busted a fake stamp paper scam by arresting a gang of four, including the kingpin identified as Chota Telgi. The gang was making fake stamp papers and the police seized illegal items worth Rs 2.71 crore. The accused were working as brokers and typists on the city civil court premises for the last few years. Colour printers, computers and fake seals of the sub-registrar's office were also seized. The accused were identified as Hussain Telgi, a resident of Viveknagar, his associates Harish, a resident of Basaveshwaranagar, and Shavar alias Seeman and Nazma Fatima, both are residents of Bapuji Nagar.

Denied passport even after 88 days: Activist

ENS @ Bengaluru

BENGALURU-BASED climate activist Disha Ravi on Saturday alleged that her passport has been denied 'despite following due process'. She works for Swedish climate change activist Greta Thunberg's organisation 'Fridays For Future', and claimed that she was supposed to be in Glasgow along with three other members to attend the prestigious United Nations climate conference.

On Saturday, she tweeted, "I could not attend the COP26 event and was subject to unnecessary court proceedings. My passport was still withheld. This is a blatant violation of my civil liberties".

She further claimed that a notice issued by the Ministry of External Affairs states that criminal proceedings are no bar for obtaining a passport. She attended court hearings and visited the Passport Office twice so far, but did not get the passport even after 88 days.

When TNSE contacted her over phone, she was not available for comment.

Speaking to TNSE, S Balan, an advocate said that "Denying passport to Disha is state terrorism and misuse of power. Delhi police had filed a false case. She is not even an undertrial as the police have not filed any chargesheet."

ECO CONCERNS SLIP THROUGH NEW SAND POLICY

TEAM TNIE

THE new sand policy under the Karnataka Minor Minerals Concessions Rules 2021 aims at streamlining procurement, supply and pricing while claiming to mitigate corrupt practices, but has left much wanting as regards environmental impact.

The construction industry is looking for easy availability of sand. In keeping with the new policy, the process of extracting sand from west-flowing Varahi, Sauparnika, Swarna and Sita rivers has begun in Udupi and Kundapur taluks as sand dunes here are in the coastal regulation zones (CRZ).

As per rules, sand extracted from local rivers/streams are permitted for local work. Sea divers who extract sand from the seabed in CRZs are permitted to extract sand, and in the non-CRZs too, but without using machines. Extraction from non-CRZ sand bars in Karkala taluk may begin soon, and it is believed that it will eliminate the dearth of sand in Udupi district in the coming months.

Under the new policy, at gram panchayats, the price of sand has been fixed at Rs 300 per metric ton (MT), while sand extracted from river beds and supplied to urban areas will be priced at Rs 700 per MT.

The Mysuru Mines and Minerals Ltd and Hatti Gold Mines have been permitted to extract sand from river beds. Moreover, while the state government collects 50 per cent of royalty levied on sand, half (25 per cent) will be given to panchayats, which are also authorised to grant work permits for sand extraction. Environmentalists and commerce chambers members are critically questioning this, as it will mean the threat of politics and friction.

The rules stress on constituting district sand committees, headed by the deputy commissioner, with stakeholders including police, zilla panchayat CEO, Forest Department officials, which will meet once in two months to decide lease grants and mining work permits.

Gram panchayat members that TNSE spoke to say the government should implement the sand policy effectively, with officials checking illegal transportation of sand to neighbouring districts to sell at higher prices. "District authorities should deploy special officers at sand blocks where customers are cheated while weighing and also check for bribes," they said. The government has entrusted the task of extracting sand from Kalyan Karnataka and Kittur Karnataka (Mumbai Karnataka) regions to Hutti Gold mines. It has sought environmental clearance for extraction from 43 identified slots on river beds in these regions, after which tenders will be invited for sand extraction and distribution.

Sources in Kalaburagi said eight slots on river beds of the districts will be looked after by Hutti Gold Mines. Four slots on small ponds have been allotted to the gram panchayats, which will sell sand at the rate of Rs 300 per tonne and Hutti Gold Mines at Rs 700 per tonne.

BIG PICTURE

However, the policy extends decentralisation of sand mining procedures to such an extent that it has raised eyebrows over enforcement.

Illegal extraction of sand from the river bed is allegedly taking place in parts of Kundapur as complaints in this regard have reached the tahsildar's office. Sources say sand is being illegally extracted from a sand dune in Sauparnika River at a spot which has not been identified for extraction by the committee.

Udupi MLA K Raghupathi Bhat who has held protests in the past demanding change in sand policy specifically for the coastal region, says the new sand policy will ensure sufficient supply of sand as extraction from non-CRZs is allowed now. Local bodies will decide on the sand dunes to be cleared in non-CRZs, he says.

Environmentalist Deepak Gala, too, says the new sand policy will not help remove corruption as gram panchayats have been involved in the new policy.

However, Subramanya S Rao, president, Sonale Gram Panchayat in Hosanagara taluk, Shivamogga district, says, "Gram panchayats will be the deciding authority. It will reduce illegal sand mining and help the government earn more royalty. Gram panchayats will also be empowered financially too," he feels.

> By giving extraction to companies and decentralising the exercise of extraction and transportation, illegal activities will be checked. To ensure that there is no environmental damage, we are working on creating a blueprint on the type of M-sand that must be utilised and how much can be procured. At present, the state is 80 per cent dependent on M-sand and 20 per cent on natural sand.

> Halappa Achar, Mines and Geology Minister

FOCUS ON CONSTRUCTION THAN ENVIRONMENT

Experts says the draft of the new policy favours the construction industry more over environmental issues.

According to the Mines and Geology Department, in Karnataka, 38 lakh tonnes of M-sand and 14-15 lakh MT of natural sand is utilised. There is a shortage of around 15-20 lakh MT annually. Manufactured sand (M-sand) is produced from crushing hard stones into small sand-sized particles, washed and finely graded for use as construction aggregate, and is considered as a superior alternative to riverbed sand. Experts say the shortage can be addressed with technological interventions, which the government is not keen to explore.

"There is a thin line between conservation and development. While the Central Government, at the COP-26 summit, is saying it will help protect island countries, the coasts here are being ignored. The policy favours the construction industry. Despite the presence of CRZs, extraction of sand is taking place. The problem is that there is no mechanism to keep check on the ground level regulations," says Dr Venkatray Nayak, retired Professor of Marine Biology and Honorary Secretary, Uttara Kannada Zilla Vignana Kendra.

Conservationists say the new policy does not mention adhering to environmental rules — CRZs, eco-sensitive zones, buffer zones and protected areas — where mining activities are prohibited. As M-sand is obtained from quarries, a cap on this is also needed, says activist S R Hiremath. The government could have taken stern steps earlier and stopped illegal mining in Ballari. But it lacked political will. The same is happening now also. The government is supporting industries and areas like Raichur, river banks along Tungabhadra, Cauvery and others are being exploited, he pointed out.

UV Singh, retired forest department official, says in large infrastructure projects construction works M-sand cannot be used because of it's coarse and natural sand is required. However, in some smaller housing projects, M-sand is being used because it is cheaper. With large projects happening, maintaining ecological balance is a challenge.

Singh said that while import of sand has now stopped, inter-state transportation is also banned, but illegal supply of sand from Mangaluru to Kerala is happening.

Campus placements a nightmare for industries

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

STUDENTS who join a company through campus placements have a tendency to quit the job early. This happens due to a lack of understanding of the ethos of the company or role the candidate is expected to play and is a major concern for industries.

Discussing the issue on Saturday, education experts at an NEP conclave said that the need of the hour is to stop seasonal placements and hold timely interactions and internships.

Kavitha Gowda, DGM, Karnataka Skill Development Corporation, who spoke at the conclave organised by the International Skill Development Corporation, agreed with this and said, "Students join colleges without even knowing what jobs they are supposed to do."

She said that students are not familiar with the working work. "They don't understand accountability, responsibility, being answerable to a boss. Many are not able to adapt to that discipline," said Anuradha Varma, global learning business partner, EY GDS.

Sameera Fernandes, Director of Ecosol Global, which works for internationalisation of higher education in India, said that differential internships would make a difference where students can, from the early years, experience and explore various job roles, so they know what they want to do. "This would rid them of the tag of freshers, and would give students a chance to experience six different companies (one in each semester) by the time they graduate. At the same time, this will drastically reduce the training cost for companies," she stated.

K K Ramachandran, Director of GRD Group of Institutions, Coimbatore stressed that the focus must be on finding strengths of students rather than focussing on fixing weaknesses. "The Indian education system works in such a way, that we focus more on a person's weakness, rather than their strengths. They need to be counselled and taught about the realities of the professional world," he added.

Why bring politics into education, HC asks govt

DONNA EVA @ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court recently reprimanded the government for politicising the issue of implementing Kannada under the New Education Policy (NEP).

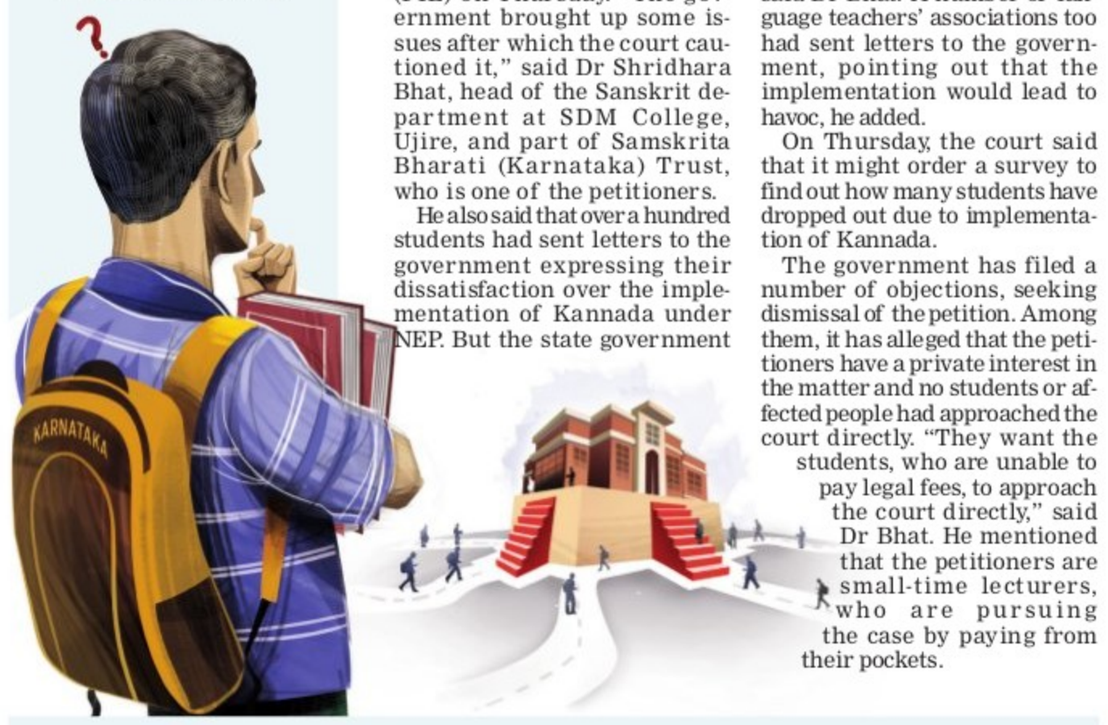
The high court was hearing a public interest litigation (PIL) on Thursday. "The government brought up some issues after which the court cautioned it," said Dr Shridhara Bhat, head of the Sanskrit department at SDM College, Ujire, and part of Samskrita Bharati (Karnataka) Trust, who is one of the petitioners.

He also said that over a hundred students had sent letters to the government expressing their dissatisfaction over the implementation of Kannada under NEP. But the state government claims that four Sanskrit organisations that have filed a PIL filed before the Karnataka High Court are doing so to promote their personal interests.

"More than a hundred students from multiple regions and categories had sent letters to the education department, which were returned without acknowledgement," said Dr Bhat. A number of language teachers' associations too had sent letters to the government, pointing out that the implementation would lead to havoc, he added.

On Thursday, the court said that it might order a survey to find out how many students have dropped out due to implementation of Kannada.

The government has filed a number of objections, seeking dismissal of the petition. Among them, it has alleged that the petitioners have a private interest in the matter and no students or affected people had approached the court directly. "They want the students, who are unable to pay legal fees, to approach the court directly," said Dr Bhat. He mentioned that the petitioners are small-time lecturers, who are pursuing the case by paying from their pockets.



NEP to change role of varsities: VCs

ENS @ Bengaluru

WHAT will be the role of universities after colleges have become autonomous degree-awarding institutes is a question that has been bothering the academic circles. Vice-chancellors believe that the role of universities will change, be it in terms of mode of imparting education or the kind of education imparted.

At an NEP conclave, organised by the International Skill Development Corporation on Saturday, vice-chancellors felt that greater focus would be on imparting skills, as also on making students employable. Campuses are likely to shrink, but they will also house facilities for holistic development of students, such as a Yoga centre, they opined.

Bengaluru City University Vice-Chancellor Lingaraju Gandhi said the focus will also be on employment in addition to knowledge creation. He believed that public universities will be compelled to see changes in the governance structure, academic programmes and adoption of technology, while NEP will bring changes in curriculum, pedagogy and assessment.

Bangalore University Vice-Chancellor Venugopal KR said universities will be forced to start undergraduate courses with postgraduate courses sandwiched between UG and PhD. BU, at the forefront of NEP implementation, has already set up future infrastructure.

> There would be a hybrid learning system and the curriculum would be in pace with technological changes with a focus on skills that will be constantly updated

TRIPPING DISCOMS, TAXPAYER PAID BAILOUTS

Can there be a market of sellers without paying customers? For decades India's political class persisted with the "extend and pretend" model of reforms in the power sector. The question is whether bankrupt SEBs can power the promise of 24x7 Electricity for economic growth on an unsustainable economic model?

In November 2000, three MPs asked the government about the mounting losses of state electricity boards. The then Minister of Power Jaywantiben Mehta informed the Lok Sabha that in 1999-2000 SEBs had recorded losses of over ₹14,900 crore. She revealed that instead of earning a minimum rate of return of 3 per cent on their assets as required under Section 59 of the Electricity Supply Act, 1948, almost all SEBs are showing "negative returns".

In the two decades since the picture has worsened. In March 2010 the losses of SEBs after receiving subsidies stood at ₹45,382 crore. Accumulated losses stood at ₹1.5 lakh crore. To fund these losses SEBs had to borrow. The outstanding loans stood at ₹2.66 lakh crore. In November 2021 PFC's report on state utilities reveals that as of March 2019-20 the losses of SEBs post receipt of subsidies was ₹38,093 crore. Accumulated losses stood at ₹5.07 lakh crore, outstanding debt of the state utilities touched ₹5.14 lakh crore.

THE THIRD EYE

SHANKKAR AIYAR

Author of The Gated Republic, Aadhaar: A Biometric History of India's 12 Digit Revolution, and Accidental India

shankkar.aiyar@gmail.com

Every few years the Government of India is confronted by the bankruptcy of SEBs. Bailout packages followed as in 2000 and 2012, and in 2015 the Modi government came up with UDAY which was presented as an incentive package. In 2021 there is a new bailout with an allocation of ₹3.03 lakh crore spread over five years.

Every bailout is a combination of the clichéd carrot and stick policy — states are goaded to implement a plethora, virtually a laundry list, of much-needed and pending reforms to make the sector viable in return for moolah, paid for of course by the hapless taxpayer. What is noteworthy is the consistency with which the central conditions persist in each bailout.

In 2001 chief ministers of all states agreed to 100 per cent metering of all consumers, elimination of power theft, upgradation of T&D systems and reduction in the gap between the cost of power supplied and revenue realised. In 2012 states were offered grants on reduction of theft/AT&C losses, reduction in the gap between cost and revenue realised and metering. The 2015 package required the willing states to achieve improved operational and financial efficiencies – aka (AT&C) losses, cost to revenue gap and institution of metering.

Most commitments have slid down a slippery political slope. Consider the quest to reduce AT&C losses - essentially the difference between the cost of supply and revenue collected. Globally transmission and distribution losses range between 2 and 8 per cent. In India AT&C losses are a euphemism for technical inefficiencies and brazen billed-and-unbilled theft. In January 2019 Power Minister R K Singh informed the Rajya Sabha that "reduction of 1 per cent in T&D losses results in a saving of ₹4,146.60 crore".

So what has been the progress? In 2001 AT&C losses were around 26.5 per cent. Two decades later they are still at 20.9 per cent. The crux of failure rests in what Milton Friedman observed in the mid-sixties. He said that the problem in India is that too many objectives were bunched in the design of policy. This would be true of the bailout packages which aimed to address issues ranging from installation of regulatory issues to induction of metering to improving revenue realisation.

The viability of the power sector demands closing the gap between the cost of power supplied and revenue realised. This is haunted by politicised sloth and lack of competition in the last mile of delivery and collection. This calls for opening up distribution for competition. Given the resistance to privatisation this column (http://bit.ly/1AD41Or) had in 2015 suggested setting up of a national discom owned in part by say the NTPC, Power Grid and PFC to compete with state utilities to install efficiency.

More immediately it is necessary to induct smart tech. It is true that vulnerable sections of consumers need subsidies or subvention in costs. Equally it is critical to recognise that those who promise must pay and that there are technological solutions available – both for arriving at the cost of supply and payment of subsidies. Unlike the past there is now the Aadhaar-based direct benefit transfer system available. Add to this the e-Rupi, launched recently, which is designed for "person and purpose-specific" utility.

Take the issue of free power for farmers. Why not deploy the learnings from pilot projects, use smart metering to arrive at the average consumption of the farmer to bill the farmer and pay for the same using a prepaid e-Rupi coupon riding on the tried and tested DBT system. The same could be deployed for supplying power to BPL families. It will enable transparency as the cost of political intervention will be reflected in the budgets of state governments.

Repeated bailouts are both the cause and consequence of the extend and pretend band of incrementalism. It is useful to remember that there can be no equity — political or economical — without efficiency. The sector's viability is central to energy security and to India's aspiration of a $5 trillion economy.

WHEN ROWDIES BECOME PRESIDENTS

POINT OF VIEW

T J S GEORGE

"IF I see you, get out of my way. You son of a b–ch, I'll slap you. Believe me, I'll slap you in front of a lot of people. You really want to test if we really have (it)? You have a wife. You lend her to me, you son of a b–ch."

Classic street language used by rowdies. But these sentences were used by the President of a country. And in public. People in the know will say that in this case, there is not much difference between a rowdy and the President. Rodrigo Duterte of the Philippines is not only contemptuous of democracy, he is vulgar in his ways. The violent words he uttered were aimed at Francisco Tatad, a cabinet minister in the 1970s and now a respected columnist in the Manila Times.

Duterte represents the phenomenon of goondas in politics. In the best of times, the Philippines has been a country where gun-toting politicians ruled the roost. Duterte made his name as a gun-toter. His rise to national prominence is based on a campaign he launched against people he called drug traffickers. Thousands were killed. Of course they were not all drug traffickers. A good number of Duterte's political opponents ended up in various cemeteries. The scandal forced the International Criminal Court to order a probe. Duterte dismissed it as foreign interference. This is a man who was proud of his record as a killer. He had repeatedly boasted that, as mayor of Davao City, he had shot dead suspected criminals without waiting for court trials.

The Philippines is an unusual country. In the largely Muslim environment of Southeast Asia, it retains a Christian identity. This leads to a double disadvantage. It makes the country an outsider in the region, and it raises questions about what Christianity is. Various nationalised Christian cults compete with more than a hundred Protestant denominations with the result that faith becomes a fad. The way some Filipino politicians have used Christianity will make Jesus Christ weep. Dictatorship flourished in the Philippines with the apparent backing of Jesus — under his disciple Ferdinand Marcos in the past, under disciple Rodrigo Duterte now.

Philippines is the only country named after a foreign monarch whose colony it was: King Philip II of Spain (1527-1598). As much as 86 per cent of its population is Roman Catholic. They don't seem excited about their religion. If Filipinos are excited about anything, it is basketball and boxing. The global profile of the country is dominated by nurses. Not only is the Philippines the world's largest supplier of nurses; Filipino nurses are famous for their professionalism and sociability.

In the largely Muslim environment of Southeast Asia, Philippines retains a Christian identity. The way some Filipino politicians have used Christianity will make Jesus Christ weep. Dictatorship flourished here with the apparent backing of Jesus — under his disciple Ferdinand Marcos in the past, under disciple Rodrigo Duterte now

That the country bears the name of a foreigner has been a talking point for generations. Successive leaders have spoken about the need for a name that would be free of colonial memories. The preferred new name has been Maharlika. Duterte says: "Maharlika is a Malay word. And it means more of a concept of serenity and peace." Ferdinand Marcos, ruler of the country for 21 incredible years, was also in favour of Maharlika. But he did nothing to make it a reality. Will Duterte go beyond words into action? There is no hint yet that he would outclass Marcos.

The Marcos era had another hero no less historical than the President himself. This was Ninoy Aquino.

Dynamic and handsome and always articulate, always open-minded, he was imprisoned for seven years — which made him a mass hero. Any day he could replace Marcos in the presidency. But that day never came because, while deplaning at the Manila airport one day, he was assassinated. The crudeness with which attackers shot him in such a public space as the airport terminal confirmed the general impression that Marcos was behind the killing. It smeared Marcos' name for ever. In time people chose Aquino's widow, Corazon, as President of the country. Their son, Aquino III also became President. The Manila airport is known as the Benigno Aquino International Airport.

No country in Asia has seen modern art flourishing as it does in the Philippines. Widespread public interest in art sustains a corpus of world-standard artists. Names like Amorsolo, Ang Kiukok, Francisco and Juan Luna represent the best in modern art. Vicente Manansala's abstractionist scenes are as striking as they are imaginative. Amorsolo's 'Planting rice' unveils a vast field where colourfully dressed women are busy with their work. In many ways the Philippines is a blessed country despite the element of curse politics brings upon it.

Female economist guesswork has babus in a twist

HAS the infamous steel frame of the Indian bureaucracy turned into aluminium? The Modi Sarkar has emasculated the age-old veto and is deflecting tactics of our devious desk jockeys. For long they have been banned from the Lutyens' Delhi dining and whining club. For the past five years they have been religiously attending office to deal with files and attend prescheduled meetings. If recently-retired officials are to be believed, the architecture of decision-making has changed faster than postings. Out with the traditional bottom-up movement of files, now it is top-down. The decision making happens at the top and goes downwards for implementation. Previously the apathetic apparatchiks were privy to senior-level appointments. Now it's only when the names are uploaded by DoPT at midnight on its website that they get a shock. Some hallucinating high ups simply indulge in guesswork at social gatherings. The current Kaffeeklatsch revolves around who'll be the next Chief Economic Advisor (CEA) to the Finance Minister. Will the first-ever woman Finance Minister get a first-ever woman CEA? Will disruptionist Modi borrow an economist from the Brentwood Institutions or prefer a Bhartiya Arthshastri? The post has fallen vacant as the incumbent Krishnamurthy Subramanian is returning to the idyll of academia after completing his term next month. The CEA post has been advertised. The male- dominated economists' cabal has no clue about the workings of the PM's labyrinthine mind. Three names are being bandied about in the corridors of power. On top of the gossip list is Dr Pami Dua, Professor at Delhi School of Economics. She was picked by the Modi government in 2016 as the first woman member of the RBI's all powerful Monetary Policy Committee for four years. She is perhaps the only homegrown economist with credibility. Another desi economist in the reckoning is Poonam Gupta, Director General of the National Council of Applied Economic Research (NCAER) who was the RBI Chair Professor at National Institute of Public Finance and Policy. She has recently been appointed as one of the seven members of the reconstituted Economic Advisory Council to the Prime Minister (EAC-PM). However, some foreign-educated mandarins have floated the name of Gita Gopinath, 50, chief economist, IMF who leaves in January 2022. Like many previous CEAs, she is well connected with American academics and corporate captains. She has been quite conspicuous by her elegant presence frequently on Indian TV news channels talking more about pandemic economics than macroeconomics. Her American citizenship could stand in the way of her plum posting. However, the current Principal Economic Advisor Sanjeev Sanyal is the dark horse for his commitment to Hindutva Economics. A panel of three names would be decided by a Search Committee which is yet to be made public. The choice of the next CEA would indicate the ideological direction of the Budget 2022.

Videshi plus desi is good for economy

Prime Minister Modi is finally putting the Economic Think Tanks in shape. Last month he reconstituted his seven-member Economic Advisory Council (EAC-PM). According to the official website , the EAC-PM is a non-constitutional, non-statutory, independent body meant to advise the Prime Minister on macroeconomic and related issues such as inflation, microfinance and industrial output. It is expected to bring to the notice of the government vital economic developments which may affect economic growth. However, the composition of the EAC-PM headed by Bibek Debroy, a foreign-educated indigenous economist, indicates that Modi is serious about involving external technocrats with strong corporate relations to provide inputs for policy formulation. Four of the seven members are still working with private Indian and Foreign financial institutions, corporate houses and banks.

Babu drowns in Bengal culture shockwave

At first gander it may appear to be usual administrative action. But for gossip mongering babudom, Modi's move is the first fallout of the BJP's electoral pummeling in West Bengal. Last month, in a surprise development, the Appointments Committee of the Cabinet abolished the post of CEO, Development of Museums and Cultural Spaces. It accepted the resignation of retired West Bengal-cadre IAS officer Raghvendra Singh from the post. As a part of the PM's grand plans for the revival of Indian heritage, Singh was inducted in 2019 for a three-year term which was to expire in September 2022. Previously, he was reemployed as Secretary, Culture for a year after his retirement as Secretary, Ministry of Textiles—unusual for a babu. According to inside scuttlebutt, the BJP leadership was convinced that Singh, a former aide of the late finance and external affairs minister Jaswant Singh would be a symbol of the saffron party's cultural revivalism during the Bengal elections. He did upgrade various museums and was seen accompanying the Prime Minister during the latter's visits to Kolkata. He was also tasked with converting the Teen Murti Marg Jawaharlal Nehru Museum into a museum for all former prime ministers. But after Modi appointed a Cabinet-rank Culture minister and two Ministers of State, they discovered that Singh's performance wasn't stellar enough. He couldn't deliver even a fraction of what was expected from a culture vulture. After all, civil servants have a habit of falling faster than they rise under political patronage.

Overcrowded NITI-Aayog's moment of reckoning

There is some chatter about reformatting the current utility of the NITI Aayog. After he came to power, PM Modi had replaced the Planning Commission with the Niti Aayog, which was supposed to move faster on future planning and ensuring ease of business and responsive governance by evolving cooperative federalism. It was expected to hold frequent meetings in which all chief ministers would actively participate. But the body has convened only six times in the past six years. There is a feeling in power circles that the NITI Aayog is dominated by outsiders in the form of partners in various sectoral reforms. It is a cavalier constellation of advisors, senior advisors and consultants assisted by numerous professionals — an ostentatious outfit that talks more and does very little, parties more and plans even less. In official circles NITI Aayog is famous as Index Construction Consortium. It has introduced controversial Index for measuring the success of everything from schools, colleges, districts, hospitals and smart cities. How was an index created, is still a mystery. The Prime Minister has already appointed an expert committee to do a serious review. Early this year the Prime Minister had asked Adil Zainulbhai, Chairman of the Quality Control Council of India to look at the entire NITI Aayog structure and mandate and suggest any modifications. He was appointed to head the Quality Control Council of India by Modi in September 2014. Zainulbhai is an IIT-Bombay graduate and a post-graduate from Harvard Business School. According to published reports he was associated with US multinational firm McKinsey for over three decades and retired as head of its Indian operations. But the decision to dump or retain NITI Aayog in its current form would be taken only after the conclusion of Assembly elections.

Perennial blame game

This refers to the editorial 'Loads of Lessons From Latest Round of Chennai Flooding'. It is not just Chennai, every Indian city turns into a lake whenever they get more than the normal rains. So, the first lesson is whenever the authorities take preventive measures, they should keep the future in mind. Second lesson, we the people should not be careless and use the drains for dumping household waste and then blame the government when water enters our homes. Last and important lesson is that flooding affects all and there is no point in the ruling party blaming the previous government and vice versa. Instead of wasting time, both parties should collectively find ways to prevent flooding.

N Nagarajan, Secunderabad

Free-food relief to poor

It is gratifying to note that in Chennai more than five lakh people affected by the flood could satisfy their hunger in the last two days through the free food centres functioning as Amma Unavagam. There is no doubt that the satisfied stomachs of these five lakh poor people would have profusely thanked late Jayalalithaa who started the scheme. A mention should also be made about Chief Minister Stalin who allowed the Unavagams to function with the Amma tag.

V Rahul Venkatasubramanian, Chennai

Dress code for teachers

The circular from Kerala Department of Higher Education stating that teachers may wear any type of decent and comfortable dress during work is welcome. The word 'decent' should be underlined. I say this because when a Malayalam film Premam came out, there were a lot of teachers attending schools and colleges wearing black shirts and white dhotis. It was very bad because the teachers should not resort to childish practices. Currently, there is no rule requiring female teachers to wear only saree, but some schools and colleges insist it. This is quite unseemly because churidar is more comfortable than a sari at work and when travelling. Although a uniform dress code is not required, pants/dhoti and shirts for male teachers and sari or churidar for female teachers are the most appropriate.

K A Solaman, Alappuzha

Bring back normal fares

After close to 20 months of disruption, the railways is resuming services. However, it raises eyebrows that most of the resumed trains are operating as special trains, for which extra fares are charged. Moreover, concessions to senior citizens have also been stripped. The government ought to decipher that railways is one of the most convenient ways for travelling, especially for the economically backward section. The policies ought to be made keeping in mind the interest of poorer sections of society who are hard hit by the pandemic.

Abominable insult by Kangana

Despite setting a tone of inclusiveness in the selection process for Padma Awards this year, one glaring misfit in the list is actress Kangana Ranawat! She is an outspoken supporter of BJP so much so that she had the audacity to say '1947 ki aazaadi hamein bheekh mein milee thhee'. What an abominable insult to the innumerable freedom fighters! Will some action be taken against her.

Controversy over book

This has reference to the news 'MP seeks legal advice to ban Khurshid's controversial book'. State Home minister Narottam Mishra's indignation can't be faulted over the covert and overt methods being adopted by the leftists and intellectuals who defame Hindu religion with profit- making motto. Freedom of expression is OK but the same yardstick should be applied by them on other faiths. However, they dare not to do so. The recent controversy over Tamil film Jai Bheem is an example. Since Hinduism is patient to assimilate the criticisms of others with tolerance the critics feel emboldened. Even heads of other religions are aware of this.

As polls near, Akhilesh's love for Jinnah grows: Shah

Home minister accuses Opposition leader of minority appeasement, praises CM Adityanath for overall development of Uttar Pradesh

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

TAKING a dig at Samajwadi Party chief Akhilesh Yadav, Union Home Minister Amit Shah tweaked the acronym JAM, the Centre's Jan Dhan-Aadhaar-Mobile initiative to link Jan Dhan accounts with mobile phones and Aadhaar cards to plug leakages in government subsidies, to say that for Akhilesh, JAM stands for Jinnah, Azam Khan and Mukhtar Ansari.

"We brought in JAM. J for Jan-Dhan accounts, A for Aadhaar cards, M for mobile phones. The Samajwadi Party also claimed to have brought a JAM. It is stands for Jinnah, Azam Khan and Mukhtar (Ansari)," Shah said while addressing a rally in Azamgarh.

Shah's dig was a reference to Akhilesh's controversial statement on Mohammad Ali Jinnah wherein he had compared Pakistan's founder with Jawaharlal Nehru, Mahatma Gandhi and Sardar Patel saying the Muslim League leader's contribution to the country's freedom struggle was equally great.

Shah accused Akhilesh of minority appeasement, saying as the Assembly polls were inching closer, the SP leader's liking for Jinnah was also surfacing. He also took a swipe at previous regimes saying during their governments, Azamgarh became a safe haven for the terrorist. "Azamgarh, which was portrayed as the nursery for terrorism during previous governments, will soon become a temple of Goddess Saraswati and a seat of education for the youth of eastern UP," Shah said. The home minister invoked Maharaja Suheldev as the one who fought against invaders to make the land free.

The state government decided to name the university, whose foundation stone was laid by Shah on Saturday, after Maharaja Suheldev. It is being seen as a major political symbolism to woo the Rajbhar community, which constitutes around 12 per cent of the electorate in the eastern region.

The Suheldev Bharat Samaj Party, led by O P Rajbhar, had contested the previous assembly election in alliance with the BJP and had bagged four seats for the first time. But, this time Rajbhar has tied up with SP.

Shah praised UP CM Yogi Adityanath for implementation of central schemes, Covid management and development. He listed the state's GDP, which he claimed had gone up from Rs 10.9 lakh crore to over Rs 21 lakh crore. "During the last five years, unemployment rate has come down from 17.5 per cent to 4.5 per cent," Shah claimed.

He also claimed that under the Yogi, law and order had improved and said Adityanath had rid the state of mosquitoes and the mafia. "While Japanese encephalitis, which used to devour many lives in the past, is no more a menace, mafia have been forced to take refuge outside UP," he added.

ANOTHER NAME CHANGE ON THE CARDS

UP CM Yogi Adityanath on Saturday hinted that the name of the place Azamgarh could be changed to Aryamgarh. "The university, foundation stone for which was laid today, will make Azamgarh truly Aryamgarh, there should be no doubt about it now," Adityanath said in a tweet.

BJP failed UP, says SP president

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Lucknow

ACCUSING BJP of failing on all fronts and not fulfilling promises made to the people of the state in its election manifesto in 2017, Samajwadi Party president Akhilesh Yadav said on Saturday that ruling party should be held accountable before the 2022. He added that the saffron party had deceived the people of the state.

The SP chief said the ruling party should not worry about 2024 (general elections). It has to answer people's questions in 2022 (Assembly elections) first. Launching the third leg of his Vijay Rath Yatra from Gorakhpur, the stronghold of CM Yogi Adityanath, Akhilesh accused the ruling BJP of selling major institutions instead of giving jobs to the youth.

"Earlier, the BJP government was a 'pheku sarkar' (government that made false promises). Now, it has become a 'bechu sarkar' (government that sells)," Akhilesh said.

"They have insulted the farmers by promulgating three farm laws instead of doubling their income as promised. Fuel are sky-rocketing and inflation is at its peak. The value of the rupee is touching a record low," claimed Akhilesh while moving on his Vijay Rath carved out of a Mercedes bus equipped with five-star facilities.

He also criticised the government for "not helping the labourers and the poor during the Covid-19 lockdown".

Elaborating on farm laws, Akhilesh said: "The farmers are protesting for the last so many months, but the government has not lent an ear to them. Instead, it is crushing their protest. Protests are a way of making the government listen in a democracy, but this government is muzzling their voice. It has insulted the farmers and will take their land."

The SP chief also ridiculed CM Yogi Adityanath, saying that he did not know how to operate a laptop, so he was not distributing laptops among the students. Yadav said Gorakhpur was awaiting development. "Development has stopped in Gorakhpur during the BJP regime... Now, the people of Gorakhpur will bring down the fever of arrogance of the BJP," he claimed.

Top court clears arrest of 'arrogant' UP officials

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Saturday refused to give relief to Uttar Pradesh state finance secretary and the additional chief secretary (revenue) from arrest. The Allahabad High Court had issued bailable warrants against them for not adhering to its order.

A bench headed by Chief Justice of India N V Ramana termed the act of both the officers as arrogant and said, "You deserve all this. More than that. What are you arguing here in this matter. The high court should have ordered arrest by now, we think more severe punishment was needed to be awarded. The high court has been gentle with you. Look at your conduct, you are depriving an employee of his arrears. You did nothing to abide by the orders. The high court has been very kind to you ...you have no respect for the court. This additional chief secretary appears to be very arrogant."

The matter is related to regularisation of service and payment of arrears to a collection amin in Allahabad.

On November 1, the court observed that the officials have been treating the court as a playground and have refused to grant arrears of salary to a person who was earlier denied the rightful claim of regularisation of service.

"As the respondents (officers) have deliberately mislead the (high) court and flouted the undertaking given by the additional advocate general in not granting arrears of salary to the petitioner, this court records it distress and anguish about the reprehensible conduct of the respondents, and accordingly, believes that it a fit case to issue bailable warrant against additional chief secretary (revenue) and Sanjay Kumar, the then district magistrate currently posted as secretary (finance), government of UP, Lucknow to appear before this court on November 15. Let bailable warrant be issued against...," the high court had ordered.

The state government had approached the top court to save the top officials from getting arrested.

Ex-Goa CM Trinamool's candidate in Rajya Sabha

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kolkata

THE Trinamool Congress on Saturday nominated Luizinho Falerio — a former Chief Minister of Goa where the party is trying to establish its presence in next year's Assembly elections — as its candidate in the Upper House of Parliament. Falerio joined TMC from Congress recently and was elevated as the party's national vice-president.

The TMC has already started projecting Falerio as the face of the party in Goa. Election to a Rajya Sabha seat from West Bengal is scheduled on November 29. TMC MP Arpita Ghosh tendered her resignation from the Upper House on September 15 and the seat has been vacant since then.

Criticising the TMC decision of nominating Falerio as Rajya Sabha candidate, BJP MLA Suvendu Adhikari, the Leader of Opposition in West bengal, said the state's ruling party has deprived the people of the state by nominating an 'outsider' as a candidate for the Upper House.

Despite having near-zero presence in Goa, Mamata banerjee's party has already started its political venture in the coastal state, with a slogan Goenchi Navi Sakal (new dawn for Goa) and initiated a high-decibel campaign, mainly overseen by election strategist Prashant Kishor's Indian Political Action Committee (IPAC) team. Elections are due early next year.

Moitra TMC's Goa in-charge

Kolkata: The TMC on Saturday appointed firebrand Lok Sabha MP Mahua Moitra as the state in-charge of the party's Goa unit, months ahead of Assembly polls there. In a statement, the party said: "Our honourable chairperson Mamata Banerjee is pleased to appoint Mahua Moitra as the state in-charge of AITC Goa unit with immediate effect."

Delhi schools shut, govt offices go for WFH mode

KANU SARDA & VATSALA SHRANGI @ New Delhi

HOURS after the Supreme Court rapped the Delhi and Central governments, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal on Saturday ordered closure of schools and other educational institutions for a week from Monday and a work-from-home format for government offices.

Private establishments have been advised to opt for work-from-home as much as possible. Kejriwal also ordered a halt to construction activity till November 17.

The decisions were taken after an emergency meeting held in the wake of the SC's suggestion on considering a two-day lockdown to manage air pollution in Delhi-NCR.

"Look at the seriousness of the problem, schools have opened post-Covid and children will be out at 7 in the morning. We are exposing them not just to the pandemic, but even to pollution and dengue," Justice D Y Chandrachud said during an hearing on the issue. Chief Justice of India N V Ramana and Justice Surya Kant were also part of the Bench that heard the petition.

Talking to reporters, the chief minister said his government will present a proposal for lockdown before the apex court.

During the hearing, Solicitor General Tushar Mehta submitted that there was a spurt in stubble-burning in Punjab in the last three to four days. He said the statutory authority at the Centre had already directed states to levy fine on farmers for stubble-burning.

At this, the Bench stopped Mehta from making further submissions, and said: "Everyone is bashing the farmers. In Delhi there was a ban imposed on fire crackers, what happened to that? What has Delhi Police done? Tell us about that."

Mehta then said that stubble-burning is just part of the problem. "We are not criticising the farmers at all..." he added.

The special Bench gave Central government until Monday to come up with its plan.

On Saturday, Delhi's air quality saw a slight improvement, registering 437 in the air quality index (AQI), down from 471 on Friday, the worst reading yet in this season. A reading above 400 is considered severe.

Kejriwal said virtual classes at city's schools will continue.

Fashionable to blame farmers for pollution: SC

KANU SARDA @ New Delhi

IT has become a fashion to fault farmers in recent times for Delhi's annual air pollution during the winter months, Supreme Court judge Justice Surya Kant remarked on Saturday while hearing a case relating to rising pollution levels.

Justice Surya Kant, who is himself from a farming family, made the observation during a special hearing by a bench headed by Chief Justice of India NV Ramana with Justice D Y Chandrachud and himself.

When solicitor general Tushar Mehta brought up the aspect of stubble burning by farmers of Punjab, Haryana and UP as a reason for air pollution in Delhi, the bench stopped him from making further submission and said: "Everyone is bashing the farmers. In Delhi there was a ban imposed on fire crackers, what happened to that? What has Delhi Police done? Tell us about that."

Mehta told the bench that the central government was not blaming the farmers and explained the scheme wherein farmers are given machines to pull out stubble which are given free of cost to marginalised farmers. He said the statutory authority at the Centre had already directed states to levy fine on farmers who resorted to stubble-burning.

Mehta submitted that 2 lakh machines were available in the market and farmers who cannot afford could take it from cooperative society for free.

But the bench said the problem is not the availability of machines but the enforcement of policy. It asked Mehta whether the government had incentivised the scheme and seek details like how many cooperative societies have been set up, how many machines supplied, and the capital cost involved in providing the machines.

Justice Chandrachud also told Mehta to submit information on when the intervention to prevent stubble-burning began. "This year, monsoon got delayed, hence, the window period for a farmer to sow (for) the kharif season is less compared to what it was last year or probably the year before. You should tell us when did cooperative societies reach out to farmers for aiding them in removal of stubble," he said.

Justice Surya Kant agreed with Justice Chandrchud and said both he and the CJI have been farmers and therefore they are aware of the problems faced by them.

CJI SAYS HE LEARNT ENGLISH IN CLASS 8

Chief Justice of India N V Ramana on Saturday said he is not a sophisticated speaker and learnt English in Class 8. The comment was in response to Solicitor General Tushar Mehta's clarification that he was not suggesting that only farmers are responsible for air pollution in Delhi-NCR. "I don't have good English for expressing words," said the CJI. This was in response to Mehta's remark that "The language in which our response as lawyers is taken might send the wrong message which was not the intention." Mehta said he too learnt English in Class 8 and studied in Gujarati medium.

At peak of pandemic, only 5% of hospitalisations under PMJAY: Study

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

THE Narendra Modi government's flagship health insurance scheme — Pradhan Mantri Jan Aarogya Yojana — may have failed to help a majority of its beneficiaries during the worst of the Covid pandemic, when most of the people were struggling for access to healthcare, an independent analysis has shown.

The analysis carried out by Jeevan Raksha, a public private partnership initiative, has found that only 5,85,750 of a total of 107,05,251 in 17 states — or just about 5% of the total hospitalisations were for Covid treatment between January 2020 and June 2021. PMJAY launched in September 2018 assures free hospitalisation coverage of upto ₹5 lakh to nearly 60 crore poor Indians.

The latest report, however, showed that shockingly in Gujarat and Punjab, with 14.7 lakh and 6 lakh beneficiaries, respectively, not a single hospitalisation was for Covid treatment. In contrast, Maharashtra fared the best among states and every two of three patients who got the hospitalisation benefit under the scheme in the state, got treated for Covid-19.

The data has been analysed by the project, a partnership between management firm Proxima and the Public Health Foundation of India, from 17 major states that include the eight empowered action groups or socio-economically backward states. "The data clearly indicates the current status of PMJAY implementation as well as quality and integrity of some of the disclosed data," said the report.

R S Sharma, CEO of National Health Authority which implements the PMJAY, was not available for comment despite attempts to reach him.

The analysis, done meticulously with state-level data, pointed out that during January 2020 and June, 2021 over 3 crore Covid patients were traced and treated, while 4 lakh people succumbed.

During the same period, over 1.7 crore PMJAY beneficiaries availed treatment under the scheme but "surprisingly", over 95% were reported as non-Covid treatment, it said, adding that only 5.85 lakh hospital authorisation were reported as Covid treatment.

Among backward states, 27 lakh beneficiaries have been authorised for treatment under PMJAY, but only 61,500 were treated for the disease. "This means during the Covid period, when people were struggling to get hospital beds for Covid treatment, 98% of the hospitalisations under the PMJAY Scheme was for treating non-Covid patients," the analysis has said. The story was similar in Bihar, UP and Jharkhand.

₹8.4K CR GRANT FOR 19 STATES FOR PRIMARY HEALTHCARE

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Centre has released ₹8,453.92 crore as health sector grant for rural and urban local bodies of 19 states, as per recommendations of the 15th Finance Commission.

The government said the grants to the remaining nine states will be released after their proposals are received through the health ministry.

The Commission in its report for the period 2021-22 to 2025-26 recommended a total grant of ₹4,27,911 crore to local governments. This includes health grants of ₹70,051 crore. Of this, ₹43,928 crore is recommended for rural local bodies and ₹26,123 crore for urban bodies.

A statement from the Union government said these grants are meant to strengthen health systems and plug critical gaps in the healthcare system at the primary level. The Commission has also identified interventions that will directly lead to strengthening the primary health infrastructure and facilities in both rural and urban areas and has earmarked grants for each intervention.

Some of the interventions recommended include support for diagnostic infrastructure to the primary healthcare facilities in rural areas with a fund of ₹16,377 crore and block level public health units in rural areas with ₹5,279 crore. In addition, an amount of ₹24, 028 crore has been recommended for urban health and wellness centres. The health grants recommended to be released in the financial year 2021-22 is ₹13,192 crore, which includes ₹8,273 crore for rural and ₹4,919 crore for urban local bodies.

Raigarh adores Colonel Viplav as real hero

Officer from Assam Rifles, his wife and son lost their lives after their convoy was targeted by unidentified militants

EJAZ KAISER @ Raipur

Colonel Viplav Tripathi and wife Anuja | EXPRESS

SUBHASH TRIPATHI, editor of local Hindi daily 'Bayar', and his wife and retired professor, Asha couldn't believe they lost son Viplav, with whom they had celebrated Diwali festival in Manipur and returned just a few days ago.

Colonel Viplav Tripathi, 42, of Assam Rifles, his wife Anuja, 39, and their five-year-old son Abir lost their lives after their convoy was targeted by unidentified militants in the northeastern state.

Viplav's younger brother Anay Tripathi, also with Assam Rifles, is posted at Churachandpur in Manipur.

"Anay, whose promotion to Colonel rank is due next month, got a WhatsApp message from officials about the incident in Manipur. Anay, who had came to Raigarh just a day before, immediately left for Manipur," said Rajesh Patnaik, maternal uncle of Viplav.

Viplav got his initial school education till Class V from Raigarh's Carmel Convent School and later got admission in Army School at Rewa (Madhya Pradesh) from where he opted to join the Indian Army. He cleared the National Defence Academy (NDA) in 2001 to accomplish his dream, said his family friend and senior journalist Anil Rateria.

Raigarh Collector Bhim Singh said the state is proud about the Tripathi family. "This is a very unfortunate incident. Viplav's valour and sacrifice will always be remembered by the people of the district. His last rites will be performed here on Sunday," he said.

Abhishek Upadhya, who has been long associated with Subhash, said Viplav couldn't visit Raigarh since the outbreak of Covid-19 pandemic in March last year, so he invited his parents to visit Manipur where both stayed for three and a half months. "It's shocking for Subhash ji, who not just lost his son, but also grandson and daughter-in-law," Upadhyay averred.

Chief Minister Bhupesh Baghel strongly condemned the attack and expressed his deep condolences to Tripathi family.

Viplav's grandfather Kishorimal Tripathi was the first Lok Sabha member from Raigarh constituency.

PLA restarts cycle of violence in Manipur

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @Guwahati

THE People's Liberation Army's (PLA) one of the most violent groups, has rekindled the fire of insurgency in a more or less peaceful Manipur. Saturday's attack in Churachandpur, carried out by the militant organisation, has put not just Manipur but the northeast on the boil again.

A reprisal attack by the security forces on the violent insurgents is now a certainty because not only a senior Army officer was killed but also his wife, son and four other personnel.

The grouping to which the PLA belongs – CorCom (Coordination Committee – is itself a powerful body of seven militant outfits of Manipur's Imphal Valley that operates from the soil of Myanmar in coordination with other militant groups from Northeast.

Manipur has over 40 insurgent groups but a large number of them have been lying low for a long time following their signing of separate suspension of operation agreements with the government. Those which are still wielding the gun carry out the attacks periodically but not to Saturday's scale.

People following the insurgency movement of Northeast say the rebels carry out such attacks to make their presence felt.

"They were lying low. This is an opportunistic attack where they are trying to send the message that they are still around," Pradip Phanjoubam, editor, Imphal Review of Arts and Politics, said. He insisted that a serious effort is needed to solve the problem. "There was a time when insurgency-related violence was common in Northeast but now, most states are peaceful. Mizoram no longer has this problem. The attacks by the militants have also ceased in Assam, Nagaland, Meghalaya, Tripura and Arunachal Pradesh," Pradip Phanjoubam said.

Rajasthan villages vote for prohibiting liquor

RAJESH ASNANI @Jaipur

BARAR and Hamela Ki Vair village panchayats in Rajasthan's Rajsamand district became liquor-free on Saturday after residents voted in support of shutting down all liquor shops. Over 64 per cent people of both the village panchayats voted in favour of prohibition. Out of 5,632 voters, only voted against prohibition.

The move came after an anti-liquor campaign by the women. The villages bore a festive look on Saturday as people, particularly women, participated with full enthusiasm with officials of Rajsamand district administration supervising the polling.

The special vote was carried out under the Rajasthan Excise Rules, which empowers a panchayat to opt for closing a liquor shop if 51 per cent of its residents vote for it.

The villagers celebrated by dancing outside the polling booth after the result was declared. Pankaja Singh, Sarpanch of Barar, said, "We are happy that the wait has finally ended. People in Barar were inspiring each other to vote for the liquor ban and our work for the past several months has borne fruit with people's support."

Alcoholism has been a rampant problem in this region and which prompted the campaign for prohibition. So far, four village panchayats of Rajsamand have become liquor-free.

At first, there was a ban on liquor in Kachbali in 2016 after 94 per cent people voted for prohibition. In April this year, Thaneta panchayat of the district voted for the move with 60 per cent of the villagers supporting it.

Ramesh Kumar, Sarpanch of Hamela ki Vair, remarked, "Women used to complain that their husbands wasted their earnings on liquor. Often, the men beat their wives or met with accidents after getting drunk. Now I hope people's lives will improve."

Section 144 clamped in Maha's Amravati on BJP bandh day

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mumbai

A curfew has been imposed in Amravati in the state after fresh incidents of violence and vandalisation were reported during the BJP called a bandh on Saturday.

The party had called the bandh in protest against Friday's stone pelting, and damaging of vehicles and shops in Malegaon, Nanded, Parbhani and Amravati. However, BJP Bandh was called only in Amravati city limits.

Skirmishes were reported in parts of the city, purportedly triggered by BJP elements after they found refusal to shut shops with a few owners in compliance with the bandh. IPC section 144 (curfew) was imposed in Amravati.

Maharashtra Home Minister Dilip Walse-Patil said that everyone should cooperate with the police. He said the police will take stringent action against those taking out in violence and damaging public and private property.

"I have spoken with the leader of opposition as well and appeal to extend the support for the social harmony of the state. The unity of the state is more important than politics. The situation is under control. On Saturday, the violence was reported in Amravati after BJP's bandh. We are also checking the intelligence report," Walse-Patil said.

He also pointed out that there was no need for calling protests in Maharashtra in the backdrop of recent violence in Tripura.

Amravati police commissioner Arti Singh said that without a medical reason, no one should come out from houses during the curfew. Amravati Guardian Minister Yashomati Thakur also revealed that people should help to maintain the law and order. She appealed to the media not to repeat older clips. She urged the media to report responsibly.

While Maharashtra Congress president Nana Patole said that the BJP-RSS is now resorting to inflicting conflict between two communities as they failed to topple the Maha Vikas Aghadi coalition. He said BJP-RSS plans for a riot so that they can divide the society however they will not allow this nefarious plan to take shape.

Meanwhile, BJP MLA Nitesh Rane has demanded banning the 'Raza Academy' that had organised protests in various parts of Maharashtra on Friday. He also termed it a terrorist organisation

Fearing rebellion, Bengal BJP wary of rejig before poll

PRANAB MONDAL @Kolkata

THE difference in opinion among BJP's Bengal outfit state functionaries has surfaced following growing rebellion within the party cadre. The rejig in organisational set-up, both at state and district-level before the upcoming municipal elections has left the party state brass in much dilemma.

A section of party functionaries opined that dealing with the ongoing resentment among a section of party workers after the saffron camp's unimpressive performance should be treated as main challenge before the civic polls while others preferred to follow the conventional way of restructuring the organisation's set-up following the recent appointment of new state president.

Many BJP leaders said if party workers are removed from their positions during reshuffle, the party may witness more rebellion resulting large scale defection ahead of the municipal polls. Two major civic bodies, Kolkata municipal corporation and Howrah municipal corporation, will go to the poll on December 19.

"The party already witnessed massive defection to Trinamool Congress (TMC) in the recent past resulting a jolt to the lower rung of the structure and higher level as well. Five of the party's elected MLAs in the 2021 Assembly elections already changed their political allegiance and joined the TMC. Besides, a large number of grassroot workers, too, defected to the TMC," said a BJP leader.

As per BJP's conventional style of functioning – post the appointment of the new state chief – rejig in all of the party district segments has been carried out.

"Newly-appointed state president Sukanta Majumdar took charge of the state organisation in September and in the close circuit, he expressed his unhappiness over the issue of delaying the rejig exercise as he is working with the old hierarchy. But a section of state functionaries said if changes are made before the municipal elections, the campaigning for civic poll will be pushed aside as a secondary issue as rebellion triggered by the rejig will become prominent," said another BJP leader.

'Won't make massacre report public'

EJAZ KAISER @Raipur

AS political debate gathered steam in Chhattisgarh following the questions raised by ruling Congress party over the recent submission of a judicial commission report on the Jheeram attack directly to the Governor, the report has been handed over by the Rajbhawan to the state government.

Chief Minister Bhupesh Baghel, however, told the Governor's Office that his government wouldn't make the commission's report public.

The report prepared by the commission headed by former judge of Chhattisgarh High Court Justice Prashant Mishra was termed "incomplete" by the chief minister.

Earlier the BJP government led by Raman Singh had constituted a single member judicial panel after the deadly Maoist ambush in 2013 during the Congress' Parivartan Yatra at Jheeram. The attack eliminated a section of state's Congress leadership. The opposition BJP has suspected something "fishy" following the stand taken by the Congress.

Bird flu claims 168 cranes in Jodhpur

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Jaipur

BIRD FLU has made its way in Rajasthan again as over 150 Siberian migratory birds (Demoiselle Cranes) have been confirmed dead due to the deadly disease. Last year, Rajasthan saw the biggest tragedy when thousands of birds died of the disease.

Jodhpur is the epicentre of the new bird flu attack. So far, 168 Siberian birds, which are popularly known as Kurjan in western Rajasthan, have died in Kaprada, Olvi and Ramasani areas of the district. A report of Bhopal-based National Institute of High-Security Animal Diseases has confirmed bird flu (H5N1 virus) as the cause of death.

Directions have been issued for proper disposal of the carcases in adherence to the protocol to stop the infection from spreading.

Medical teams have been called in from Nagpur, Delhi and Jaipur. The administration has been instructed to spray medicines in affected areas and set up control rooms within a radius of 1km from the surrounding pond.

The Bharatpur Bird Sanctuary been put on high alert since barheaded geese are considered a carrier of bird flu and thousands of bareheaded geese come to the sanctuary for winter migration. The Kurajan birds also have a temporary stay in the sanctuary.

Dr Nagesh Choudhary, additional director in the animal husbandry department, said a survey had been started in poultry farms and wetland areas across the district and a response team formed.

Wrong candidate, BJP after setback in citadel

The BJP has come to a conclusion. It was faulty candidate selection, which led to the ruling party's defeat in its citadel Raigaon-SC, in the Assembly by-election to this seat in Satna district. The admission came from Jyotiraditya Scindia-loyalist and state minister Mahendra Singh Sisodiya. "Ground level party workers have made it clear that the reason for the loss in this seat after 31 years was incorrect candidate selection," he said. Congress's Kalpana Verma, who had lost in 2018, won this time, defeating BJP rookie Pratima Bagri. Kalpana's grandfather in-law had won the seat for the Congress last in 1985.

Bannon indicted for not testifying

Investigators think former Trump aide has details on links between White House and Capitol rioters

WASHINGTON

FORMER US president Donald Trump's longtime advisor Steve Bannon was indicted on Friday for refusing to testify to the congressional committee investigating the Capitol riot, the Justice Department announced.

A federal grand jury returned the indictment in a significant victory for the House Select Committee to Investigate the January 6 Attack, which is battling efforts by Trump and top aides to use presidential privilege to block testimony and documents necessary for the probe. The indictment came hours after Trump's former chief of staff, Mark Meadows, declined to show up for an committee deposition after being subpoenaed, which could lead to similar charges of contempt.

Investigators think Meadows and Bannon could have information on links between the White House and the Trump supporters who invaded the Capitol to prevent the certification of Joe Biden as winner of the November 2020 presidential election.

Bannon, 67, was charged with two counts of contempt—for ignoring subpoenas to appear for a deposition and for failing to supply documents to the committee. Each count carries a penalty of one month to one year in jail. According to CNN, Bannon plans to turn himself in to the Justice Department on Monday.

Steve Bannon

Bannon, 67 was among the first of dozens of people who have been called to testify on the violent attack to shut down Congress on Trump's baseless claims that Biden had won the election due to massive voter fraud. The committee said Bannon has relevant information to understanding how the attack came about.

It pointed to his presence on January 5 in activities focused on blocking the certification, when he said: "All hell is going to break loose tomorrow."

Bannon refused to testify based on Trump's own assertion of executive privilege to prevent a number of former aides from testifying and block the committee from obtaining documents from his administration related to the Capitol assault. On October 21, the House voted to refer contempt of Congress charges against Bannon to the Justice Department. AFP

NEARLY 3 DOZEN SUBPOENAS ISSUED

The US House of Representatives panel investigating the January 6 Capitol insurrection has issued almost three dozen subpoenas as it aggressively seeks information about the origins of the attack

TRUMP'S INNER CRICLE

The committee's first subpoenas in late September went to four men who were among his most loyal allies: former White House Chief of Staff Mark Meadows, former White House strategist Steve Bannon, longtime communications aide Daniel Scavino and Kashyap Patel, a White House national security aide

Bannon immediately told the panel he wouldn't cooperate, citing a letter from Trump's lawyer claiming that his conversations should be privileged and shielded from the public

The committee balked at that reasoning and the House voted to hold Bannon in contempt. The Justice Department on Friday indicted Bannon on two counts of contempt of Congress

Meadows could also be held in contempt after he refused to comply with a subpoena and appear for a deposition. A lawyer for Meadows said his client has a "sharp legal dispute" with the committee and the matter will need to be resolved in court

The House has since subpoenaed several other well-known members of Trump's circle, including former press secretary Kayleigh McEnany and top aides Stephen Miller and Jason Miller

PENCE'S ORBIT

The committee has also moved to find out more about the effort to pressure former Vice President Mike Pence, who presided over the certification and resisted aggressive attempts from Trump to upend the official process in his favour

Pence's former spokeswoman Alyssa Farah has spoken to Republican committee members Liz Cheney and Adam Kinzinger and provided documents

The committee is likely to have interest in talking to more of Pence's aides

150

The committee says it has already interviewed 150 witnesses in an attempt to build a comprehensive record of the Capitol attack

Two Russian troopers killed amid Belarus drill

MOSCOW

RUSSIA sent paratroopers to Belarus on Friday, in a show of support for its ally amid tensions over migrants and refugees amassing on the Belarus-Poland border, but two of the Russian soldiers were killed in a parachute accident.

The Russian Defence Ministry said that as part of joint war games, about 250 Russian paratroopers jumped from heavylift Il-76 transport planes into the Grodno region of Belarus, which borders Poland.

The ministry said in a statement later that the two paratroopers' parachutes collided in a gust of wind and deflated. It noted that one of the soldiers tried to use a reserve chute but the altitude was too low for it to deploy. Both died of their injuries in a hospital.

The ministry said that the paratroopers who took part in the drills re-boarded the transport planes and flew back to Russia after the exercise.

The Belarusian military said the exercise involving a battalion of Russian paratroopers was intended to test the readiness of the allies' rapid response forces due to an "increase of military activities near the Belarusian border."

It said the drills that involved Belarusian air defence assets, helicopter gunships and other forces envisaged targeting enemy scouts and illegal armed formations, along with other tasks. Earlier this week, Russia sent nuclear-capable strategic bombers on patrol missions over Belarus for two straight days. Russia's deputy UN ambassador, Dmitry Polyansky, told reporters at UN headquarters that the flights came in response to a massive buildup on the Polish-Belarusian border. The Belarusian Defence Ministry has accused Poland of an "unprecedented" military buildup on the border, saying that migration control did not warrant the concentration of 15,000 troops.

SYRIAN MAN FOUND DEAD ON POLAND-BELARUS BORDER

The body of a young Syrian man has been found in a forest close to the border between Poland and Belarus, Polish police said on Saturday. The death brings to 11 the number of migrants found dead on both sides since the crisis began in the summer, according to aid groups. "The body of a young Syrian man was discovered yesterday in the forest near Wolka Terechowska," police said in a statement. "The cause of the death could not be determined at the scene," it said. Police also said that a group of around 100 migrants had attempted to cross the border during the night in the same area.

Duterte's daughter to run against him?

MANILA

Philippines "First Daughter" Sara Duterte on Saturday entered the vice presidential race for the 2022 elections, in a surprise move that could boost the chances of presidential hopeful Ferdinand Marcos Jr winning the country's highest office.

Outgoing President Rodrigo Duterte, who is constitutionally barred from seeking a second term, also flagged plans to contest the vice presidency — triggering chaotic scenes at the Commission on Elections office handling last-minute changes to candidacies ahead of a November 15 cutoff.

The elder Duterte "will file his certificate of candidacy for the vice presidency on Monday, that's what he said," presidential communications chief Martin Andanar told local broadcaster ABS-CBN.

But he added: "I would like to believe that that is the plan for now. We don't know if this will be the same plan by tomorrow or by Monday."

Sara Duterte, 43, had been widely expected to seek the presidency in a bid to succeed her father, and potentially protect him from criminal charges in the Philippines and International Criminal Court investigators probing his deadly drug war.

Mass protests planned as Sudan military tightens grip after coup

Khartoum: Sudan's pro-democracy alliance called for mass protests on Saturday against the military's takeover as the generals tighten their grip amid an outcry by the US and other Western governments. The protests come two days after coup leader Gen. Abdel-Fattah Burhan reappointed himself head of the Sovereign Council, Sudan's interim governing body. Thursday's move angered the pro-democracy alliance and frustrated the US and other countries that have urged the generals to reverse their coup. The Sudanese military seized power October 25, dissolving the transitional government and arresting dozens of officials and politicians.

China asks US to stop backing Taiwan

BEIJING

AHEAD of the virtual summit between Chinese President Xi Jinping and his US counterpart Joe Biden next week, Beijing on Saturday asked Washington to stop support for Taiwan's independence, and said the two countries should meet halfway to repair the bilateral ties.

Xi will hold a virtual meeting with Biden on Monday.

Xi and Biden have so far had two lengthy phone conversations this year as part of an effort to ensure stability in one of the world's most consequential and fraught relationships.

Ahead of the Xi-Biden meeting, Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi has said China and the US should meet each other halfway to ensure a successful virtual summit between their two leaders and bring bilateral ties back to the right track.

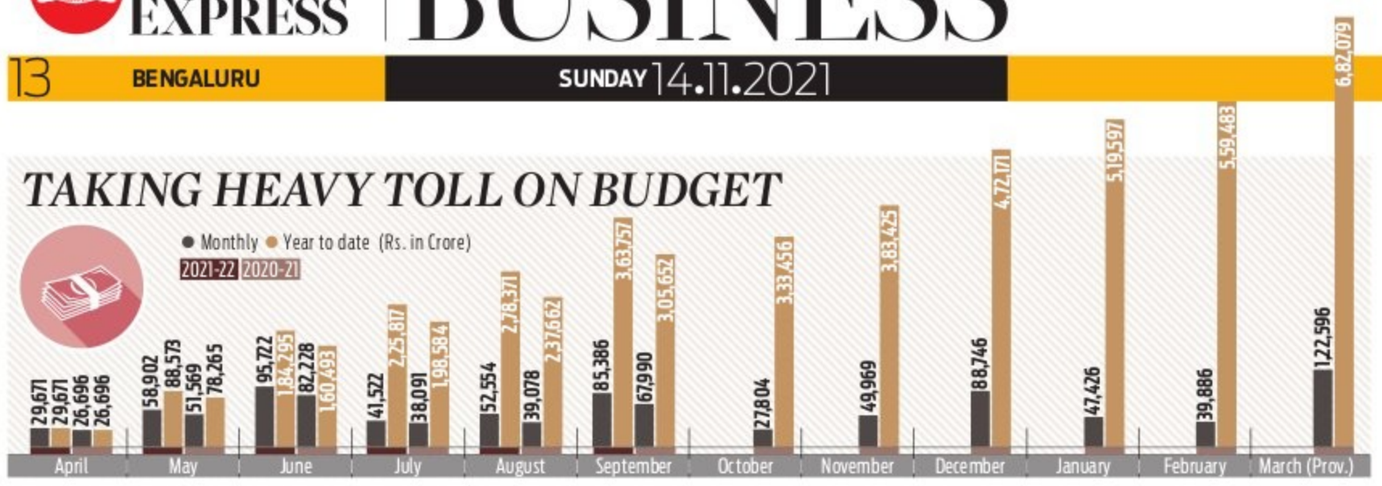
$640.874 billion India's forex reserves for the week ended on November 5, after registering a fall of $1.145 billion due to a decline in currency and gold assets, the Reserve Bank of India said



Interest payment a surging burden

Govt pays ₹3.64 L cr as interest out of its total revenue expenditure of 13.97 L cr till Sept '21

ANURADHA SHUKLA @New Delhi

MATTER OF INTEREST

Interest payment in FY15	Interest outgo in FY21
₹4.27 LAKH CR	₹6.93 LAKH CR
Total revenue expenditure	Interest payment
₹13,96,666 CR	₹3,63,757 CR

TILL SEPT 2021 Source: CGA

IN August this year Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman initiated a fresh debate when she blamed the burden of interest on oil bonds issued by the UPA government responsible for the high fuel price.

"The previous government has made our job difficult by issuing oil bonds. Even if I want to do something I am paying through my nose for the oil bonds," Sitharaman said, triggering a debate on the mounting burden of payment of interest.

According to the finance minister, the UPA government, instead of giving direct subsidy to oil companies, issued them oil bonds totalling ₹1.34 lakh crore and for the last seven fiscals, the government has been paying over ₹9,000 crore interest annually on these oil bonds.

Many economists did not find much merit on this argument as they said that the annual interest burden is miniscule, compared to what the government earned on excise duty collected on petrol and diesel. However, it shifted focus back on the mounting burden of interest payment on the central government, which has gone up from ₹4.27 lakh crore in 2014-15 to a whopping ₹6.93 lakh crore on the overall interest outgo in the financial year 2020-21.

The latest data by the CGA suggest that till September, 2021 the government's total revenue expenditure stood at ₹13,96,666 crore, of which ₹3,63,757 crore was on account of interest payments and ₹1,80,959 crore was on account of major subsidies.

Going by the government's own projection this number is expected to go up further to be ₹8.1 lakh crore in FY22, up by 16.9% year-on-year (YoY). This is higher than the projected14.9% growth in central government tax revenues and payment to oil bonds is just a fraction of it.

However, it was not only UPA, which was responsible for the bonds, which was left to be repaid by the subsequent government. Take for instance the interest burden of bank recapitalisation bonds, which were issued in 2017 by then Finance Minister Arun Jaitley to strengthen banks' balance sheet so that they could meet the regulatory norms under the Basel-III guidelines. Since then the government had issued recapitalisation bonds to banks worth ₹3.1 lakh crore, as per the Budget documents.

And it came with its own interest burden.

During 2018-19, the government paid ₹5,800.55 crore as interest on such bonds issued to public sector banks for pumping in capital in the PSBs.

In the subsequent year, according to official document, the interest payment by the government surged three times to ₹16,285.99 crore to PSBs and was up further, and till last fiscal year (FY 21), government ended up paying ₹48,000 crore for these bonds.

Experts claim assuming that no further issuance happens, still it will end up paying over ₹2 lakh crore till FY28 and have to repay about ₹21,000 crore in 2028, then ₹40,000 crore annually between 2029 and 2033, and nearly ₹20,000 crore in 2034.

While the government has made efforts to curtail subsidy burden, economists and rating agencies have already warned that this burden of interest payment as India's government debt mounted to about 90% of gross domestic product (GDP) in the wake of the Covid-19, which can potentially inflate interest payments.

"(India's) debt affordability will remain relatively weak with interest payments reaching about 28% of general government revenue in 2021, the highest among Baa-rated peers and more than three times the Baa median forecast of around 8%." Moody's had said last month. Moody's said that debt will stabilise at around 92% of GDP by FY25.

And as the government is preparing for the Budget for the financial year 2022-23, it is aware of the challenge, taking these numbers into account.

"It has been an exceptional year, yet we managed to be prudent at the same time cleaning up the accounting practices in last few years. Interest payment is not that bad if the investment cycle is bad and the revenue growth is high. Yet we are careful that this should not grow out of proportion," a senior finance ministry official said.

Shining bright: Gold prices likely to breach ₹50k-mark soon, say experts

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

AS the Indian equity markets are losing steam after an 18-month long bull run, and inflation concerns grip the world, gold seems to have started getting investor's attention, of late.

In India, gold prices this week inched up 3.6% to close at ₹49,066 per 10 gm (MCX December gold future) even as benchmark equity indices — Nifty and Sensex — ended the week only 1.5% higher. Experts feel positive momentum in gold prices may push the prices above ₹50,000 level.

International gold prices also surged 3.96% in the current week to close at $1864.53 an ounce (Comex spot price) as US retail inflation last week rose 6.2%, the highest level in more than three decades.

This triggered a rally in gold because of the metal's appeal as an inflation hedge. Gold prices have remained choppy since the start of 2021 with prices peaking at $1951 an ounce in January and touching a low of $1684 in March.

They recovered from the low in March to breach $1900 level in early June to again fall to $1720 in August. Ever since, Gold has been trying to regain its lost sheen. The recent inflation fears have come as a boost for gold prices. Bullion experts believe that gold might remain firm next week despite strengthening dollar playing spoilsport.

"Gold has stalled near June highs as support from increased demand as an inflation hedge and choppiness in equity markets is countered by persisting strength in US dollar," says Ravindra Rao, VP- Head Commodity Research at Kotak Securities. He, however, says that though gold has paused after sharp gains in the last few sessions, the momentum remains positive.

The fact that gold can break out when the US dollar is also strong suggests that it has the momentum to move higher, says Sriram Iyer, Senior Research Analyst at Reliance Securities. He says if MCX Gold (December future) breaches the immediate hurdle at ₹49,665 level, then it could push prices to ₹50,315 levels.

TURNING A NELSON'S EYE TO THE LOOMING CLIMATE CATASTROPHE

GURBIR SINGH

AMIT BANDRE

THERE is an urgency as never before to stem climate change as melting glaciers, forest fires and cyclonic storms are displacing and wiping our communities. Tuvalu, the 4th smallest nation, a cluster of islands in the Pacific, is in danger of being completely submerged as the rising oceans erode its shores. Enele Sopoaga, Tuvalu's Prime Minister, expressed fears that very soon the country's 11,000 inhabitants may become the first climate-change refugees.

Thousands of miles away, on India's western coast, Cyclone Tauktae made landfall in May this year over a vast arch from Kerala to Gujarat, killing 91 people and uprooting and flooding hundreds of villages.

As the UN-initiated Conference of Parties (COP26) on climate change winds down in Glasgow, 200 countries are scrambling to sign a treaty they hope will save the planet. The push is to slow down the warming of the earth's surface. But despite the environmental disaster staring at everyone's face, the mood is despondent.

Firebrand climate campaigner Greta Thunberg told a rally of young people in Glasgow that the UN climate change summit was "business as usual and blah, blah, blah" and it was "not a secret that COP26 is a failure." She said the annual emission cuts necessary were not just being implemented.

As the wrangling intensifies, the draft circulated at the conclave pitches for countries to adopt the old target — to limit global warming to 1.5 deg C. Earlier, a key analysis said temperatures are on track to rise 2.4 deg C in the next couple of decades if the current pace of global warming is not reversed. This will translate into even worse wildfires, floods and community displacement as sea levels rise.

Other aspects of the draft include agreeing to net-zero emissions — which means reducing emissions to a level that can be absorbed naturally by green cover or neutralized by active intervention. Most important, the latest draft "calls upon parties to accelerate the phasing-out of coal and subsidies for fossil fuels".

The warring countries are broadly divided introups. The developed world, the West and EU which are pushing on reducing methane emissions, and phasing out fossil fuels. On the other hand there are the BASIC countries — Brazil, South Africa, India and China, as well as the Saudis — that are dependent on earnings from oil or like China and India who have a high use coal for power generation, and are therefore wary about commitments on emission cuts.

The poorer countries have rejected the first draft accusing the rich of 'carbon colonialism'. They say the developed world, which is responsible for the environmental crisis in the first place, has reneged on the commitment made a decade ago to transfer $100 billion a year to the developing world for climate action. Will there be a basic common statement? Who cares? In 2014, there was a euphoric common pledge at Paris, which nobody honoured!

India sidesteps targets

Meanwhile, India's actions are being closely watched as the world's 3rd largest emitter after China and the US. Prime Minister Narendra Modi showed up in Glasgow setting a target of net zero gas emissions by a distant 2070, a significantly later deadline than other countries. But can such pledges be monitored? Zero-emissions by 2070 is a half a century away. To cut emissions to specific targeted goals, India has demanded $1 trillion in climate finance by 2030, a demand unlikely to be met by the rich countries.

Mr Modi also said India will generate 50% of its electric power from non-fossil fuel sources and increase non-fossil fuel energy generation to 500 gigawatts (GW) by 2030 from the current level of about 100 GW. The on-ground story is however different.

India had previously set itself a target of reaching 175GW by next year. This now seems unreachable. Meanwhile, dependency on coal as an energy generator continues with more than 70% of the power coming from this source. While wind and solar energy is being explored as likely alternatives, prospecting and opening new coal mines parallelly continues unabated.

India's forests are important 'carbon sinks' that absorb carbon from the atmosphere. However, research done by IndiaSpend's Tanvi Deshpande points out that India's tree cover has declined by 5% since 2001. India lost 66,000 hectares (ha) or 0.65% of humid primary forests between 2017 and 2019 and 1.93 million ha of tree cover since 2001, an area equivalent to 13 times the size of Delhi. India has also refused to sign the pledge, committed by 130 other countries, to stop deforestation.

The effects of climate change are catastrophic and are destroying the planet each day. Yet the rulers and planners lazily see it as some distant, esoteric doomsday talk that will somehow go away. Bushfires in Australia and soaring over-40 deg C temperatures in Canada don't seem to have brought anyone to their senses.

As Greta Thunberg said in Glasgow: "The people in power can continue to live in their bubble filled with their fantasies, like eternal growth on a finite planet and technological solutions that will suddenly appear seemingly out of nowhere and will erase all of these crises just like that."

TALE OF HITS AND MITCH

Mitchell has always preferred to take it deep and it wasn't a surprise to see what he did to England, says former batting coach

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

HAMILTON. London. Manchester. Perth. Now Canterbury. This has been Daryl Mitchell's home over the years. Born in a rugby household — his father, John, is a renowned rugby coach currently with the England national team — Mitchell's formative years in England were mostly confined to backyard cricket. Yet, it was in Australia, New Zealand's opponents in the T20 World Cup final in Dubai on Sunday, Daryl's career graph began to ascend.

As the Trans-Tasman final awaits two teams searching for their first T20 World Cup title, there is no one who knows Mitchell more than Justin Langer, Australia's head coach. When the Mitchell family moved to Perth in the second-half of the noughties, with John being the head coach of Western Force, Daryl enrolled himself at the Scarborough Cricket Club, where Langer was coach. Also in the team was Marcus Stoinis, who played a crucial role in Australia's win over Pakistan in the T20 World Cup semifinals. The stint lasted three years before Daryl would go back to Hamilton in 2011.

At Northern Districts, one of the prominent teams in New Zealand's domestic circuit, he found a home where he gradually built his base. In 2019, after toiling in domestic cricket, he finally got a break as a replacement for Colin de Grandhomme. Since then, he has hardly looked back. Given his performances in Super Smash – New Zealand's premier T20 domestic tournament — that he has still not found many takers in the IPL or in any other T20 leagues in itself is a surprise. While the world watched with dropped jaws as Mitchell tore apart England in the first semi-final to advance to the final, it is worth noting that no other batter has hit as many sixes (48) as him in the Super Smash.

"To be honest, in the semifinals, he stuck to his usual template," said Sriram Krishnamurthy, Northern Districts' batting coach. Although he moved to Canterbury last year, Sriram has seen the damage the 30-year-old can do. Last year, after his switch to Canterbury, Northern Districts were at the receiving end of a similar inning. "We'd put 150 and Canterbury were 3/15. For us to lose the match from there, we had to play bad cricket. But even though we did everything right, Mitchell on the night was too good for us. He scored 69 in that match and watching the England match, I just couldn't help but draw parallels," Sriram, who played club cricket in Chennai, said.

Although he was made to open in the World Cup for the first time following an injury to Tim Seifert, it is the finisher's role that he was playing earlier for New Zealand which was alien to him. At Northern Districts he was predominantly a top-order bat, who always preferred to take the game deep. "This role is not new to him. He prefers to get his eye in and then go hammer and tongs at the death. That has been his strength. Since he is opening, if Martin Guptill perishes early, he has to go for the big hits, but in the middle-overs, he prefers rotating the strike and getting the odd boundary. He is always measured in his approach and if we look at his data, the number of dot balls he faces is very less," Sriram said.

On Sunday, with Seifert expected to take Devon Conway's place, Mitchell could drop to No 3 or 4. It will alter New Zealand's settled batting line-up. Given Australia's bowling prowess, New Zealand would believe a flexible batting line-up could unsettle the opposition and hand them their maiden World Cup title.

T20 WC awaits new champions

A famous rivalry will have its latest chapter at the T20 final in Dubai on Sunday. A look at where the match between New Zealand and Australia could be won to give either side their first ever ICC title in this format.

ZAMPA, AUSTRALIA'S NOT SO SECRET WEAPON

Spin was always going to play a big part but nobody could have correctly guessed which spinner would carry the most weapons during the Super 12 stage and beyond. Adam Zampa has spun a web around all opposition batters and has reaped maximum rewards. In the Super 12 stage and counting only bowlers who have picked up five or more wickets, Zampa has the most scalps (12), best bowling figures (5/19), third-best average (10.91), third-best strike rate (11.5), fifth-best economy (5.69) and eighth most dot balls (61). His control, variation and understanding of conditions has been exemplary. Considering he's a positive match-up to a right-hander heavy NZ top-order, back him to come good.

12 Zampa has the most wickets (12) among all bowlers in the Super 12 stage

WARNER, BEGINNING OF A SECOND WIND

For over half-a-dozen years, David Warner was, by all accounts, the second best batter in this format behind Chris Gayle. He could do anything and everything, his exploits with Sunrisers Hyderabad was proof. However, a bad few months meant he was forgotten. He was finished, apparently. Not really. He has lit up the last three weeks with his array of strokeplay. He isn't quite the player that took down Dale Steyn on his international debut but he has evolved. He compensates for a lack of six-hitting with more boundary hitting and targets on taking down favourable match-ups. His battle against both Mitchell Santner and Ish Sodhi — both of whom turn the ball into him — could set the tempo up for what Australia in the back phase.

BOULT, SOUTHEE AND SODHI AXIS

While most other high profile teams have opted to bowl multiple overs of spin in the powerplay, the Black Caps have repeatedly focussed on two things during the powerplay: not allowing teams to a flier and looking for swing. With Adam Milne, Tim Southee and Trent Boult in operation, they have managed to do both with a degree of perfection. In fact, in four of the six matches thus far, the oppositions have finished with a run rate of only seven or below after the first six overs. That's allowed them to pick wickets immediately after via Ish Sodhi. Nine of Sodhi's 11 wickets have come in the first two overs of his introduction. It's simple but highly effective.

9 Nine of Sodhi's 11 wickets have come in the first two overs of his introduction

FLYING THE FLAG FOR WICKET PRESERVATION

The surfaces have helped to a large extent but the Kiwis have made the transition from the small grounds and batting belters to tougher strips and bigger grounds perfectly. They haven't lost more than three wickets in the first 10 overs even once and that's kind of allowed them to get off to sedate starts (they have scored more than 65 in the first 10 overs only once in six matches). The trade off is it has helped them to hide James Neesham, their only solid late-order hitter, till the death. It allowed them to beat England but to execute such a strategy, a lot of dominoes will have to fall in place.

1 New Zealand have beaten Australia in their only previous T20 WC meeting (2016)

3 New Zealand vs Australia is the third pair to play each other in WC finals of both white-ball formats

28 David Warner has hit 28 fours, joint top with Babar Azam. He has also hit seven sixes

Pritam's devotion to passion pays off

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

A CHAIN of unfortunate incidents meant 25-year-old wrestler Pritam Dalal never managed to represent the country in senior international meets despite being in the sport for almost 13 years. He was one of the country's brightest prospects winning gold in the 2014 Cadet Asian Championship and silver in the 2016 Junior Asian Championships.

He also bagged bronze in the 2016 Junior World Championship. Despite featuring in the Pro Wrestling League a year later, Pritam suffered serious injuries. Issues on the personal front didn't help him either. A 74kg gold on the last day of the senior national championship in Gonda, Uttar Pradesh on Saturday gave him yet another opportunity to make his international debut. The Wrestling Federation of India has announced that the top two finishers from each weight category will represent the country in the Commonwealth Wrestling Championships scheduled in Pretoria, South Africa from December 3 to 5.

"Yes, the Commonwealth Championships will be my first senior international event," Pritam said. "I suffered a knee injury in 2016 that forced me out of wrestling for months. My father passed away next year and the responsibilities of supporting the family was on my shoulders. By the time I managed to deal with all these issues, wrestlers, who were competing alongside me, progressed. That feeling of being left behind even forced me to think about quitting the game but my Guru Ranbir Singh Dhaka didn't let me lose the motivation," added the Railway wrestler.

The medal is Pritam's third in the senior nationals. He had won bronze in 2015 and finished second in 79kg in the 2020 nationals held earlier this year. The 74kg category this edition was quite competitive with former Worlds bronze medallist Narsingh Yadav, 2021 Junior Worlds bronze medallist Yash and 2019 Asian Championship silver medallist Amit Dhankar in the fray. Pritam, however, steamrolled his opponents winning two of his bouts by fall and two by technical superiority to enter the final. He continued the momentum in the title clash winning 11-0 against Yash.

"He is one of the country's best wrestlers these days but injuries and personal issues have held him back. I hope he realises his potential," said coach Dhaka, who runs Guru Mehar Singh Akhada in Rohtak, Haryana.

Amid pollution in Delhi, BCCI going ahead with SMA knockouts

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

EVEN though the air quality index (AQI) in Delhi reached hazardous level of 473 on Saturday, the Board of Control for Cricket in India's (BCCI) has no plans to shift the Syed Mushtaq Ali T20 knockouts from the city. The knockouts will be played at the Arun Jaitley Stadium in Feroz Shah Kotla beginning Tuesday amid worsening pollution levels in the national capital.

After the Supreme Court of India suggested lockdown to control the pollution levels in the city on Saturday, the Delhi government shut down schools for a week and said government officials will work from home. However, the SMA T20 is unlikely to be shifted to another city as things stand. With all the 11 teams already in a bio bubble in the city from Wednesday, the BCCI officials stated that shifting to another venue is ruled out as there is no window available. The Vijay Hazare Trophy which begins on December 8 will see teams enter bio bubbles at their respective host cities on November 30. With SMA T20 final slotted for November 22, there is a week-long gap, but bubble-to-bubble transfer not existing in domestic cricket, the BCCI feels the window is too narrow.

The episode once again lays bare the BCCI's lack of foresight when it comes to scheduling domestic events as the pollution has been a constant issue in Delhi during the months of November-December. In 2017, the India vs Sri Lanka Test in Delhi was affected by pollution with several visiting team players complaining of breathing difficulties. In 2016, few Ranji matches had to be postponed because of smog and pollution.

According to professor Ratnakar Shetty, who was BCCI general manager, cricket development, till 2018, the board had taken a decision not to host matches in Delhi in November-December after the issue was raised in Parliament. "Knowing it is an annual occurrence, I don't know if it is the right thing to host the matches in Delhi. It is a serious problem for cricketers coming from a different city because they won't be used to this pollution level. And if they play in these conditions, someone could land up with serious problem. They can even experience breathing problems. The BCCI should take stock of this and reconsider the situation," Shetty told this daily.

Meanwhile, the Tamil Nadu Cricket Association, scheduled to host the Vijay Hazare Trophy Plate group and knockout fixtures has already informed the BCCI to keep another city as back-up as it is monsoon time in Chennai.

EQUESTRIAN

'Dominance of Army within EFI has been a challenge for EIRS'

ASHIM SUNAM @Bengaluru

FOUAAD Mirza is synonymous with equestrian in India. Barring the product of Embassy International Riding School (EIRS), who finished 23rd at the Tokyo Olympics, it is hard to recollect any Indian who has competed with such confidence at the top level. With equestrian being one of the most expensive sports in India, the takers are limited. In order to take it up, you have to be super rich or have tremendous backing.

On that count, Mirza, who trains abroad, has been lucky to have financial support of EIRS in Bengaluru, which celebrated its 25th year anniversary recently. It has good infrastructure and offers high-quality training. However, since its inception in 1996, it has not been easy sailing. They have faced many challenges, especially with the Army's dominance in the Equestrian Federation of India (EFI). Jitu Virwani, EIRS owner, who is passionate about the sport, threw more light on the problems.

"One of the biggest challenges (for EIRS) has been the dominance of the Army within EFI. Army personnel continue to be in command, unfortunately. Being an outsider and a civilian, it's been challenging to work with them – it's been an uphill battle to get them to be less rigid and enable the sport to grow. One of many examples is funding. Though I had RBI approval, the EFI hasn't provided the required NOC to deploy sponsorship funds. I had to begin investing my own funds to train riders and to provide them with the pedigree of horses needed to compete at the highest level. From 2014 until today, I have spent about $8-9 million. I have spent ₹15 crore on Fouaad Mirza's Olympic journey alone," Jitu said.

Jitu Virwani, EIRS owner

The EIRS has emerged as one of the premier riding schools in India, run according to the British Horse Society standards. It was at the EIRS, where the Asian Games trials for India were also held last month. The venue has witnessed some domestic as well as international events in the past. They have done their bit to promote the sport. The advent of the Equestrian Premier League a decade ago or so, is one such example, where riders from various parts of the country compete. More importantly, they have tried to spot talented riders and train them, giving them access to top coaches and facilities.

Silva Storai, EIRS director, believes that the federation needs to be more supportive. "There are many things that need to be done in order to see the sport grow and develop in India. First of all, we need a strong federation to take everybody to the next level. Right now, everybody feels that the federation is run by the Army and not so, maybe, civilian friendly in a way like, the civilians requirement to grow in the sport is different from the army men. Unless you have a federation that really works for the betterment of the sport, it gets tough," said Silva.

Despite the problems they have faced over the years, Jitu is hopeful of inspiring more equestrian riders. "As we continue to stride ahead, our goal is to further the momentum and take the sport up a notch. In the next five years, we are looking to host a few international events here to inspire aspiring equestrian homegrown athletes. Unfortunately, unless we see greater transparency from EFI, our efforts will be in vain."

RICH PREVAIL AS LOSS & DAMAGE CLAUSE OMITTED

Resistance from US, EU sees specific finance facility clause getting dropped from COP26 draft; activists say UK bullied into submission

CLIMATE

GLASGOW: Sleep-deprived COP26 negotiators on Saturday struggled to bridge deep divisions holding up a deal to deliver the emissions cuts and financial support needed to avert the accelerating disaster of climate change. A new draft, released deep into overtime by the Glasgow summit's UK presidency, urged nations to accelerate efforts to phase-out of unfiltered coal and "inefficient" fossil fuel subsidies. Large emitters such as China, Saudi Arabia and Russia had tried to remove the mention of fuels, according to delegates.

But after resistance from rich nations led by the United States and European Union, the draft text omitted any reference to a specific finance facility for "loss and damage" – the mounting cost of global warming so far -- which has been a key demand of poorer nations.

The text noted "with deep regret" that wealthy nations had also failed to stump up a separate annual sum of $100 billion they promised over a decade ago, but said only that it would come by 2023. Greenpeace International chief Jennifer Morgan told AFP that the language on fossil fuels "is far from what is needed but sends a signal – I dare countries to take that out of the text right now".

"The US has to support the most vulnerable on the issue of loss and damage. They cannot avoid this issue any longer. Nor can the European Union," she added. "I would call on President (Joe) Biden to do what's right, and support the most vulnerable in helping them deal with their losses."

The US and EU delegations did not immediately respond to requests for a comment.

Saleemul Huq, director of the ICCCAD climate NGO, said the British COP26 presidency had been "bullied" overnight into rejecting specific loss and damage funding.

"The UK's words to the vulnerable countries have been proven to be totally unreliable," he said. One observer party to discussions told AFP they expected developing nations to "push back and try to turn the dialogue into something that is not endless blah, blah, blah".

Delegates from nearly 200 countries are in Glasgow to try to hammer out how to implement the 2015 Paris Agreement goals to limit temperature rises to 1.5-2 degrees Celsius.

The third round of revisions since Wednesday came after frenetic haggling that stretched overnight past the summit's scheduled conclusion on Friday evening. Countries already battered by climate disasters such as record-breaking drought, flooding and storms are demanding they be compensated for loss and damage.

However, a proposal to include the creation of a dedicated facility to administer financial support was quashed by historical emitters, delegates said. In its place was a line offering "dialogue to discuss the arrangements for the funding of activities" on loss and damage. Amadou Sebory Toure, head of the G77+China negotiating bloc, told AFP the proposal was "put forward by the entire developing world, representing six of every seven people on Earth". He said separate finance was needed "to effectively respond to our needs to address the loss and damage being inflicted on our peoples, our communities, our economies, by the impacts of climate change". Alden Meyer, senior associate at climate policy think tank E3G, said loss and damage talks were a "cliffhanger moment" that could jeopardise the UK's goal of wrapping the summit up later Saturday.

Developing nations say it is unfair for the summit to produce an unbalanced agreement heavily weighted toward "mitigation" -- how economies can ditch fossil fuels by 2050.

Paris' Triangle Tower remains controversial
A spectacular new pyramid-shaped glass skyscraper is set to be built in Paris after years of planning, a move the city's Green party legislators denounced as "catastrophic" and counter to climate pledges

M*= METER
Clumsy in its overall form, lacking in human scale, it makes a strident intervention on the Parisian skyline and is without civic manners. The Tour Triangle is anti-urban in the extreme: a giant blade which cuts the site in two and looms like an extra-terrestrial apparition over its immediate surroundings

WHAT IT WILL CONTAIN
4-star hotel, co-working office spaces and cultural facilties
120 ROOMS

The city's council rejected the project, but later approved it in 2015
OPEN TO BUSINESS
Policymakers and politicians are betting on the tower going up to attract more business to Paris, which however wants to retain its cultural with a capital C and its idea of beauty
Authorities are not wrong in seeking to open up Paris, as youngsters are leaving it for other French cities that are more commercial, with better work opportunities.
On the other hand, Paris, which famously retains its 19th century skyline, remains an affordable city for low-income families in France
2026
The Triangle Tower (Tour Triangle), to be built in the 15th district on the city's southwestern edge, is set to be finished in 2026 after winning financing from insurance giant Axa following years of delays. Work is due to start next year
RARE ADDITION
It will be a rare high-rise addition to the skyline within the inner city limits of the French capital, which prides itself on keeping its historic character intact in the face of rampant development elsewhere.
WHO ARE THE ARCHITECTS?
Designed by expert Swiss architects Herzog and Meuron, it will inevitably draw comparisons with the famous modern pyramid in the courtyard of the Louvre museum in central Paris -- though far larger and resembling a giant elongated wedge of Toblerone chocolate
'CLIMATIC ABERRATION'
Green legislators on the Paris city council, who sit in coalition with Socialist mayor Anne Hidalgo, denounced the plan as a "climatic aberration" that should be abandoned. The tower has a "catastrophic" carbon footprint for both its construction and its operation, they added.
MONTPARNASSE
The tower that made Parisians hate skyscrapers with a long-lingering passion is Montparnasse, which opened in 1973. Residents joke the tower offers the best view in the city because it is only from there you cannot see it. Though polls show younger Parisians support new highrises, older people don't believe that city officials learnt from the lesson of Montparnasse

Gmail suffers 5-hour outage

TECH

Gmail is finally up, following a five hour outage that left frustrated users unable to send or receive emails. According to DownDetector, the issues started at around 08:44 BST, and have just been resolved. Speaking to MailOnline, a Google spokesperson said: "On Friday November 12 around 08:30 am UTC, some of our users experienced a service disruption to Google Cloud services, including Google Workspace. This issue is now resolved." Several frustrated users took to Twitter to discuss this morning's outage. Many appeared to be getting a 502 error when trying to access their emails.While the issue appeared to affect UK users predominantly, others reported problems getting into Gmail from other countries including Spain and Kenya.

Elusive crystal discovered

GEOLOGY

An elusive crystal predicted decades ago has finally been discovered trapped inside a diamond from deep Earth. High-pressure calcium silicate perovskite — a mineral predicted in 1967, but never before seen in nature — was found in a diamond from the lower mantle. Researchers led from the University of Nevada used synchrotron x-ray diffraction to characterise the crystalline compound, which they have called 'davemaoite'. Based on their results, davemaoite has now been confirmed as a new mineral by the International Mineralogical Association. The choice of name honours the work of the eminent Chinese-American geophysicist Ho-Kwang 'Dave' Mao in the field of deep-mantle petrology.

Rare Henry VII coins found

HISTORY

A rare 'half groat' or two-penny piece minted during the reign of Henry VII is likely the oldest English coin found in Canada. The stunning silver coin was found by archaeologists in Newfoundland, Canada this year. It's 'likely the oldest English coin to ever be found in Canada, and possibly all of North America', says the Government of Newfoundland. The 'major find' was minted in Canterbury, England more than 520 years ago, sometime between 1493 and 1499. Henry VII, the first monarch of the House of Tudor, reigned England from 1485 to 1509. The coin was found by a team at Cupids Cove Plantation Provincial Historic Site.

US COURT DECLINES TO LIFT STAY ON VAX MANDATE

VACCINE

WASHINGTON: A federal court on Friday declined to lift its stay on the Biden administration's vaccine mandate for businesses with 100 or more workers. The New Orleans-based 5th US Circuit Court of Appeals granted an emergency stay last Saturday of the requirement by the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration that those workers be vaccinated by Jan. 4 or face mask requirements and weekly tests.

Lawyers for the Justice and Labor departments filed a response on Monday in which they said stopping the mandate would "cost hundreds of lives per day." But the appeals court rejected that argument Friday. Judge Kurt D. Engelhardt wrote that the stay "is firmly in the public interest."

"From economic uncertainty to workplace strife, the mere specter of the Mandate has contributed to untold economic upheaval in recent months," Engelhardt wrote.
